127 Killed as Airliners Collide, Plunge Into New York Area

LONE SURVIVOR

His face a picture of shock, 11-year-old Stephen Baltz of Wilmette, Ill., lies in snowbank after he was thrown from United Airlines airliner which crashed into another aircraft over New York today. He was lone survivor out of 127 aboard two planes. (AP Wirephotos)

'THE BOY'S CLOTHES WERE AFIRE'

By MRS. AMELIA HELMIS
As told to United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—"I saw the whole thing."

I was standing on Union St., corner of South St. I heard the blast. Then I saw the tail end coming down. It landed on Seventh Ave. and Sterling — hit on top of a red truck.

There was one boy in the snow. He had just fallen out of the plane. I rushed to him. His name was Stanley, he said. But he was not talking clearly. (The boy's name, it was learned later, was Stephen.)

His mouth was bleeding. His hands were burned and cut. His clothes were on fire. Oh, it was awful. His face was peeling off. He had red curly hair and seemed to be about 10 or 12 years old.

The police rushed him to Methodist Hospital on 6th St. and 7th Ave.

PULLED BLINDS Horrorized Onlookers Hid Away

NEW YORK (AP) — The scene was one of such shocking horror that many of the residents of the normally quiet park slope neighborhood in Brooklyn walked stunned into their homes and pulled down the shades.

An entire city block was left a smoking rubble of bricks, plaster and splintered wood today after a United Air Lines plane plunged into it out of a snowy sky after a collision with a Trans World Airlines craft.

Mrs. Constance Clazzo was looking out the window of the flower shop where she works.

"Probably the worst thing I saw was a 17 or 18-year-old boy running screaming down the street from the accident with blood running down his entire face," she said.

"He was screaming, 'Oh, those people are burning to death.' My husband tried to grab him, but he kept running as if he couldn't stop. He was injured and I think he was out of his mind."

Julius Lehmann, 58, was driving his bakery truck down a street when he heard a loud noise and saw the plane diving out of the sky.

"I thought it was going to hit me," he said. "It was coming right at me. I raced my motor and sped down the street. Then I heard it hit and I stopped the truck and got out. I'm still shaking."

"I was standing in the door of the women's shop where I work," said Mrs. Ann Carretta. "It's just half a block from the crash.

"I saw the plane coming, it seemed, directly toward me. At first I thought it was a strange cloud. I couldn't believe my eyes. When I realized what it was, I screamed. If I hadn't screamed, I would have had a heart attack right there."

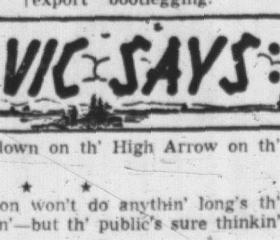

Hees Checks Cuba Exports

OTTAWA (CP)—No export permits have been or will be issued for shipment of Canadian strategic materials to Cuba, Trade Minister Hees said today. He added that the government will not issue permits for re-export of United States goods from Canada to Cuba. This would amount to export "bootlegging."

CRASHED PLANE LEAVES MOUNTAIN OF RUBBLE

ONE CANADIAN IN TRAGEDY

NEW YORK (CP)—At least one Canadian was believed to have died in today's collision of a United Air Lines and Trans World Airlines plane. Miss Beverley Parks of Halifax was listed as having been aboard the United airliner.

Chaos Reigns On Ground

NEW YORK (AP)—Two huge airliners, groping through snow-shrouded skies for landings, collided and crashed into the city today with fiery devastation. At least 127 were killed.

The disaster was one of the worst in American aviation history. It unleashed flames and havoc on the ground. Residents fled apartments screaming as walls caved in and fires broke out in a dozen buildings.

So far, however, only one person on the ground was known killed. Of the 127 persons aboard the two planes, two of them babies, one lived—a young boy.

An army of emergency workers fought through the fires and wreckage, with possibly other casualties still to be found.

One plane, a United Airlines DC-8 with 85 aboard, struck in heavily populated Brooklyn, hurling debris-like bomb fragments, and setting 10 apartment buildings on fire. A church—ironically named Pillar of Fire—was demolished. A funeral parlor was in flames.

The other plane, a Trans World Airlines Constellation carrying 42, raked over the Miller Field section of Staten Island, and came to rest in harbor water. It also started fires in the area, but they were quickly controlled.

Heavy snow was falling when the crash came about 10:40 a.m. EST. (7:40 PST).

Mountain of Rubble To Be Probed

The lone passenger to survive was identified as Stephen Baltz, 11, of Chicago's suburban Wilmette. He was on his way to join his mother, who was visiting relatives in New York.

Killed on the ground was Charles Cooper, a sanitation department employee who was shoveling snow.

Although only one victim on the ground had been found by early afternoon, Fire Commissioner Edward F. Cavanaugh Jr. said firemen still had mountains of wreckage and rubble to search.

At one point, a whole block was afire, but within four hours, a massive force of firemen, police, emergency crews, air force and coast guard squads had stemmed most of the fire's spread.

The coast guard said it had 21 boats searching waters off Brooklyn and Staten Island for survivors or bodies.

Idlewild airport sources said the close proximity of the wreckage indicated a collision although nobody could be found immediately who had actually witnessed the two planes smashing together.

Thousands of spectators rushed to the Brooklyn disaster area. Roadways leading to the scene were choked with traffic. Emergency vehicles had difficulty getting through.

In Brooklyn, two hours after the crash, the bodies of 15 persons had been taken to vacant stores serving as morgues.

The TWA Flight 226 was bound from Dayton and Columbus, Ohio, and groping for a landing at LaGuardia airport. The United Air Lines Flight 826 out of Chicago was headed through the muck for Idlewild Field.

The fields are about 10 miles apart. Idlewild near the south side of Long Island in Queens, and LaGuardia near the north shore.

'Something Wrong' With Directions

Normally two planes approaching the two fields would be separated by being assigned to different altitudes, and by passing given points on the approaches at different times.

"Obviously something went wrong," an Idlewild communications spokesman said. "But we don't know what at this moment."

The disaster recalled a collision over the Grand Canyon on June 30, 1956, also between TWA and United Airlines, with 128 persons killed.

Today's crashes created catastrophes of major proportions on the ground, as well as for the airliners.

"A whole block is afire," police said of the scene in Brooklyn, an area of thickly-placed apartment houses near Flatbush and Eighth Avenues. It's chaotic."

Bodies were hauled out of both crash areas.

Police, fire departments and hospitals rushed all equipment available to the crash areas.

A seven-alarm fire was sounded in Brooklyn. Mitchell Field air force base on Long Island was asked for help.

Fires broke out in the wreckage of both fallen planes. In Brooklyn, flames spread to the surrounding buildings. Debris was flung over the areas like an artillery barrage. Walls of some buildings were shattered.

The TWA Lockheed Constellation struck in the water off Miller Field, Staten Island.

SAW 'TWO FALL'

'Like A Giant Bomb'

NEW YORK (AP) — A Staten Island housewife said today the explosion of a Trans World Airlines plane following an air collision with a United Air Lines plane was like a giant bomb going off. Mrs. Ethel Walker of New Dorp on Staten Island said she was in her home near where the plane fell.

"I heard the explosion and looked out. It was like a huge bomb. I saw a big cloud of smoke, a mass of flames falling through the sky."

Clifford Beuth, an oil deliveryman, said he heard what appeared to be a plane in distress and looked up.

"I saw the engine on the right side blow up. I only saw one plane . . . then the second engine on the right side blew up and when it did, it blew the tail section to pieces."

"I saw a couple of people falling out of the plane. It was on fire from the time it blew up to the time it crashed."

LOOKED LIKE FIREBALL

Edward V. Curry, of New Dorp, a New York City councilman, said, "The plane was a ball of flame. It streaked through the air like a comet."

Mrs. John S. Bailey, of New Dorp, a housewife, said, "I saw the wing come off. It kept turning around just like a toy. It was all in flames. It went down in spirals and in flames."

BOMBER SUSPECT

Retired postal worker, Richard Paul Pavlick, 73, is seen in county jail at Palm Beach, Fla., where he is charged with intending to turn himself into a human bomb and destroy himself and President-Elect John F. Kennedy. See story, page 2. (AP Wirephoto.)

'CHILDREN OF INDIA'

Keep the Lamps Burning

To each one of us it is given to light a lamp in our own way."

This is the belief of a wise old villager in central India.

More lamps are being lit over India each day, despite paramount ignorance and humanitarians.

It is up to more fortunate lands to keep these lamps burning because they are the hope of tomorrow for one-seventh of the human race.

Adults are often set in their ways; children are not, so it is in the hands of the children of India that the future of this sub-continent lies.

Their hands can be taught to operate creatively; their minds to think progressively and throw off the shackles of centuries—old superstition; the entire concept of passive acceptance changed for the better.

When this happens India will be a happier India and the world a happier world.

And it will mean powdered milk for starving youngsters, soya beans and other staples of life.

This is truly selling Canada and Canada's free-wheeling tolerance, sympathy and active concern.

It reflects immeasurably on this country's individuals: whether or not they are broad-minded enough to know they belong to a world club, not a community club—the human race.

And on the internationally practical side: rare indeed is the dog that bites the hand that feeds him.

CHICAGO — Surgeons who made a medical checkup on a mental patient because he was suffering from swollen ankles recovered 258 objects from his stomach.

Their report listed these among items recovered:

Twenty-six keys, 39 nail files, three sets of rosary beads, 16 religious medals, one bracelet, one necklace, three metal chains, one beer can opener, one knife blade, four nail clippers, three pairs of tweezers and 88 assorted coins.

An "amorphous mass of eroded metal sludge" weighing more than three pounds also was removed by surgery.

The man was a patient in the Brooklyn, N.Y., state hospital.

NEW YORK — Cadon is an artist. Cadon is also a trade name.

The artist is Albert Cadon, 27. He didn't like it when the Chemstrand Corporation brought out a nylon for use in tires and called it Cadon.

"They told me my name was, fictional," Cadon said later in court. "That they had made it up out of five fictional letters."

So Cadon strolled into Chemstrand's office Dec. 7 and let fly at the wall with a gallon of black paint.

Chemstrand sued for $250 for damage to the wall and to a display advertising Cadon, the product, that is.

The case was dismissed in court Wednesday.

The triumphant Cadon had a suggestion on what Chemstrand could do with its splattered wall.

"They should take it up with the Museum of Modern Art," he said. "It would win a prize."

NEW YORK — Johnny used to write derogatory remarks about the teacher on the blackboard before class. That's not possible in closed-circuit television teaching.

But soon, Johnny will be up to his old tricks. In the electronic age it's just a matter of pushing a button.

A device developed by the Radio Corporation of America will permit students for the first time to ask questions of a teacher lecturing over closed-circuit television.

The students can see the teacher on TV, but the teacher can't see them. They will be connected by voice only.

If there is a cutup in the class, the teacher's lecture may be interrupted with:

"Teacher is a crab, teacher is a crab."

Teacher may insist that the unruly student identify himself, but if no student pushes that button, electronics will furnish a cloak of anonymity.

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Police stopped an army sergeant for running through a stop sign here Thursday, but they didn't have the heart to press charges against him.

The sergeant's name, they discovered, was Merry Christmas, and he was hurrying from Ft. Aberdeen, Md., to Lagrange, Ga., to be married.

LONDON — It was the temptation of a lifetime for the three convicts.

They were working in the garden of an open prison when they looked up and saw a trail of banknotes fluttering down the road.

They walked to the road and picked up the scattered bills which totalled nine pounds 10 shillings ($26).

They looked at each other. Only a few minutes' walk away was a railway station.

Then they turned around and walked back to prison, going straight to the warden. They gave him the money.

Later, a man who had been visiting the prison returned upset, saying he had lost his wife's housekeeping money.

Thursday the man sent a carton of 50 cigarettes to the prison with instructions they were to be given to the three honest convicts.

DIEF SAYS CANADIANS
SAFE IN LAOS, ETHIOPIA

OTTAWA (UPI) — Reports indicate "nothing to fear" in regard to the safety of Canadians in Laos and Ethiopia, Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said today.

He told the Commons, however, that dispatches from the revolt-torn nations were "confused" and indicated continued fighting in both of them.

Diefenbaker said there are some 200 Canadians in Ethiopia. An External Affairs Department spokesman said the government knew of only two Canadians in Laos.

HELD IN $100,000 BOND

Suicide-Bomber
Threatened JFK

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A 73-year-old little man with wavy white hair was held in $100,000 bond today on a charge that he intended to turn himself into a human bomb and destroy himself and the president-elect, and, further, that he disposed of and gave away all his real and personal property in Belmont, N.H., prior to coming to Palm Beach for this purpose.

An official said Pavlick denied the accusation and said he planned to kill himself.

THREATS REPORTED

"In a way, I am glad it turned out the way it has, but I don't like the publicity," Pavlick said.

The complaint said that on or about Nov. 9 and up to Dec. 15 at Belmont, Palm Beach and Washington, D.C., the defendant (Pavlick) threatened Kennedy's life.

"No, that's not correct," Pavlick told the commissioner.

It was reported that the complaint was based on information from secret service agents.

Gov't Unemployment Plans Called 'Window Dressing'
(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA—Legislation setting up a national productivity council is inching ahead in the Commons under a bombardment of opposition charges that it is nothing but window dressing for empty government employment propaganda.

The bill to establish the body, a 25-member, body striving for increased efficiency in Canadian use of men, materials and machines, was subjected to four unsuccessful opposition amendments Thursday in its plodding advance toward acceptance.

The fourth portion of the government's pre-Christmas job-making package, the productivity bill still hadn't gained Commons approval at Thursday night's 10 p.m. adjournment. Debate continues today on third and final reading. The bill came up Tuesday for approval in principle and since has trudged slowly through the underbrush of clause-by-clause study in committee.

"Facades and pretensions," said Paul Martin (L-Essex East), complaining that the council offers little if any direct remedy for the situation in which 429,000 Canadians lacked jobs in mid-November. The former cabinet minister said Prime Minister Diefenbaker had promised to do something about unemployment but had dodged his responsibility.

From one end of Canada to another the administration was being portrayed as a "do-nothing government." Its measures designed to

'Master of Innocent Deception'

Mr. Martin said Mr. Diefenbaker is the "master of innocent deception."

The country would see whether the prime minister could continue to fool the people after the government's "dismal record of failure."

Mr. Martin spoke for 40 minutes after the Commons concluded clause-by-clause study of the 19 sections of the bill.

Three amendments were voted on in which the Liberals and CCF voted solidly against the Progressive Conservative majority.

In other matters during the day, Prime Minister Diefenbaker appealed to nations supplying troops to the United Nations Congo force to keep them there.

SEN. W. D. EULER

Senator Urges Trade With Cuba

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator William D. Euler, a former minister of trade and commerce, made an outspoken address in the Upper House Thursday supporting continued Canadian trade with Cuba.

The Ontario Liberal took sharp issue with Senator David Croll, also a Liberal and also from Ontario. He said Senator Croll advocates that Canada "play the tail to the United States kite" in the matter of exporting goods to Cuba.

Senator Croll delivered an equally outspoken address in the Senate Tuesday, denouncing the Canadian government's business-as-usual policy toward Cuba. The United States has embargoed shipments of all goods except foodstuffs and medicine to the left-leaning Latin American country.

Through its "propaganda agencies" the government would seek to convey to Canadians and particularly the unemployed that it had brought in legislation to deal with the unemployment situation.

But the government had waited too late to take action. Time was not taking care of the problem, which was becoming more serious daily.

Mr. Martin said the government's legislation on guaranteed loans to small business, vocational training and the productivity council does not provide any serious solution to a serious problem.

Teachers' Salaries Held

A THREE-MAN ARBITRATION board, without dissent, has told Greater Victoria teachers that it sees no reason to increase their wages for 1961 beyond scheduled annual increments.

This means, among other things, that homeowners in this community face no immediate rise in their municipal taxes to meet the wage account for schools. The board members obviously weighed the profession's request against prevailing economic conditions and those indicated in the year ahead and saw no justification to change the rates.

This may, or may not, set a pattern for other municipal employees. It suggests that, for teachers at least, the escalator which has carried many organized groups to higher pay in recent years, has stopped running.

It is of some significance that the arbitration board's decision has been handed down immediately following a request from the Union of British Columbia Municipalities for a more realistic attitude by the Provincial Government towards its share of meeting teachers' salaries. Even without any increase in teachers' salaries, the municipalities want more help for their taxpayers to ease the burden of school taxation.

The board's judgment and the UBCM request together tie the question of teachers' pay down to the practicalities of economics as they exist today—particularly as they affect the municipal taxpayer.

There is, of course, a broader picture. In this country and elsewhere on the continent, experts agree that the bill for education will continue to mount and an important ingredient of that higher bill will be the reward offered to teachers.

The authorities want better teaching. In British Columbia they started some years ago to raise the professional requirements of teachers. Ultimately these more exacting requirements should raise standards. In the meantime there are few professions which demand shorter preparation before rewarding candidates with jobs.

The spokesman for Greater Victoria teachers, commenting on the arbitration, wonders "what calibre of people we are going to attract while the attitude of the trustees association towards the teaching profession continues to be the same as it is at present."

The spokesman might profitably turn his attention to the calibre of people already in the profession. Some of them are excellent. Some fall far short of excellence.

He can scarcely hope that teaching—which already attracts a larger percentage of high school graduates into its ranks than any other profession—will ever be in a position to limit entry only to the highest calibre of students. He might note, also, that other professions, including law and medicine, do not always recruit individuals with the ability to make fortunes from their own capacities.

Perhaps the time has come for teachers to reconsider its entirety their position, economic and otherwise, in the community. Some of them deserve more pay. Some do not. If they wish to reward individual ability, have they reached the point where they must adopt an incentive system, high income for the able, minimal pay for the inferior?

Mr. Bennett Denies Any Delay

MR. BENNETT HAS REPLIED to Mr. Strachan's charge that he is holding up development of the Columbia power project in order to favor the Peace River plan. The British Columbia Government, says Mr. Bennett, will create no such delays: "We need both."

But where is the power output of both to be sold? Assuredly British Columbia cannot hope to use it in the visible future and, indeed, will hardly be able, for some years, to use its half share of the Columbia's downstream benefits.

The Peace promoters said originally that they could not proceed unless they could export their power to the United States, assuming that the Columbia was dammed. Now they say they don't need exports. Do they expect the B.C. Electric to buy their relatively expensive power instead of much cheaper Columbia power?

In all these circumstances it is not surprising that the Canadian Government wishes to have some say in the management of the Columbia scheme. Of course it should be represented on the Columbia authority for two obvious reasons.

First, it is the Canadian Government only that is making a treaty with the United States, and it is only the Canadian Government that can guarantee, on Canada's behalf, that the treaty will be carried out. The United States cannot negotiate with a provincial government nor accept its promises, unsupported by the national Government.

Since it must take responsibility for the treaty, the national Government must be in a position to make sure that the treaty is implemented in all respects. The provincial Government may finance the whole scheme itself but the national Government should be a partner in the management of power policy as it touches international relations, and the national Government has final control over international rivers, in any case, so far as Canada is concerned.

Secondly, the national Government will wish to make sure that Columbia power is sold to Canadian consumers at the lowest possible price. If the provincial Government keeps the price unnecessarily high to earn easy revenues it can facilitate the Peace River scheme. Peace power may then be delivered more cheaply than Columbia power. All of which would suit the Peace River promoters perfectly.

They are asking the B.C. Electric and the B.C. Power Commission, the only significant potential customers, to buy their power but they refuse to divulge their asking price.

This in itself is extraordinary. Why shouldn't the public know what price is asked when the public alone must pay it in the end? If the promoters refuse to say, it is the duty of the B.C. Electric and the Power Commission to say.

These huge corporations, one private and one public in ownership, are both public in responsibility, are equally answerable to the people of British Columbia.

Each or both of them would suffer grave damage if they made an improvident deal with the Peace River promoters, at public cost. It is almost unthinkable that they should do so but they would be wise to make their position clear without delay, especially when the B.C. Electric is involved financially in the Peace River scheme for reasons best known to itself.

A Candidate, But No Party

IN THE VACANT RIDING OF Esquimalt-Saanich Mr. Glen Hamilton has been nominated as a parliamentary candidate by the so-called New Party. But actually the New Party does not exist yet. It will not exist until it is founded next midsummer. Meanwhile it is a name only, a gleam in the eyes of Mr. Stanley Knowles and his hopeful friends.

Hence the electors of Esquimalt-Saanich cannot know, before the approaching by-election, what policy Mr. Hamilton represents. He cannot know himself. For no policy will be laid down until the founding convention of the New Party, the marriage of the CCF and the labor unions.

Mr. Hamilton may commit himself to certain objectives. He cannot commit the unborn party. Will it stand for something like the original socialism of the CCF? Or will it turn to the right with a more moderate, practical policy, socialism having proved itself unacceptable to the Canadian people?

Moreover, who is to be leader of the New Party? That, too, is an exceedingly important matter for the local voters to consider. In any national election, or by-election, the people are entitled to know whom they are asked to make prime minister.

It may be said that these are all academic considerations at the moment because the New Party has no chance of forming a Canadian government in the visible future. But that is no answer to the proper questions of the Esquimalt-Saanich voters when they are asked to elect Mr. Hamilton, personally an excellent citizen.

In him, what are they asked to vote for? And if he lays down his own policy, on any public issue, what assurance is there that the New Party, when founded, will endorse that policy? There is none. Mr. Hamilton asks the voters to vote blindly.

NOW A 24-HOUR DAY

By B. A. TOBIN

For Sleepers Who Need Help and Otherwise

SCIENCE has devoted a good deal of attention to the serious things of life, and perhaps an equal amount to more frivolous matters. At least, the benefits of science have been converted to frivolous uses—all the way from pogo sticks to TV. So it isn't surprising that the laboratory men have also been looking into the common problem of sleep. Apparently sleep is a problem to some scientists—they see it as something to be done away with. Sleep wastes valuable time; a third of a man's life is spent in this unconscious state; and just think what we could accomplish if these wasted hours could be put to good use.

Of course the lab boys overlook the fact that there isn't enough work to go round now, and that this situation will automatically get worse as time goes on, automation is more widely used and the population gets larger.

In such circumstances, a sudden increase of the globe's effective man-hour force by one-third would seem to create more of a problem than it would solve.

But a little thing like that won't hold the scientists back. Once they create a problem by solving another one, then they can happily get to work solving the new one. This makes for full employment, for them, despite any threat from automation.

The latest proposal is that man needs only four half-hour periods of sleep each day. And a lot of folk would go along with that, provided they also got their full eight hours each night.

But the scientists apparently are replacing night-time sleep, not adding to it. Operating on a fully awake, 24-hour schedule, man would be put to sleep for half an hour four times a day by a small electronic gadget he would wear. At the end of thirty minutes he would be automatically awakened—all set for another five and a half hours of work.

This might have possibilities, particularly the waking-up part of the gadget—that's the only part a good many people would need. But it is easy to see the fudging that would creep in. Any creature smart enough to outwit an alarm clock, and an electric one at that, would have little trouble bugging the new device.

There might even be attachments sold—like the gimmicks that turn off TV commercials by remote control—which would extend the half-hour compulsory sleep by a few minutes. Or even a few hours.

Overtime

Seeing an employee sleeping in the stock room, his sleep meter ticking away, no employer would wish to disturb the scientific process. But if he kept careful check, the boss might find that good old Joe had been in the stock room all day, with a pencil point jammed in the sleep-wake gadget to turn it off indefinitely.

No housewife or stenographer worth her salt would fail to find a way to use a bobby pin to defeat the intentions of the electronic gadget. The four half-hour periods would become mere warm-ups for the serious sleeping of the day or night. And the scientists' gadget would get credit for a lot of bright eyes it didn't deserve.

There is no mention, either, of how the gadget would cope with the existing problem of the open-eyed sleeper, or what might be known as the wakened unconscious.

These are people—and any reader could name a dozen of them—who, while appearing to be wide awake and carrying out the duties and responsibilities of awakened citizens, are in reality sound asleep.

Tougher Problem

There is no known way of spotting them, except by their actions; the appearance is completely deceptive. They could operate equally effectively while wearing the new electronic gadget.

Such are the legislative members who forgot to vote or accidentally voted the wrong way in the House; the citizens who forgot to register for the polls, or don't turn up on election day; the drivers who forget to renew their driving licences or insurance slips; the husbands who forget to post the Christmas mail until it is found long after Christmas in a coat pocket; the well-known list is endless.

All such folk could scientifically be allotted their four half-hour periods of sleep each day. But what could science do about the in-between-times slumber which they would enjoy as they went about their daily lives, eyes open, reflexes operating, but minds asleep?

Over to you, lab men.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

End Wage Contracts

The editorial item: "Wages but no jobs" in your Dec. 13 issue re Victoria Metal Trades Council reportedly rejecting a conciliation officer's proposal for a three-year agreement which would increase wages shows plainly that the governments, at the different levels, in spite of deficit financing, have not yet achieved the right technique to solve this problem.

With wages at the peak in all lines, and still not enough to satisfy this urge to get more, it seems to me the logical thing to do is for the governments, at all levels, to wash their hands of further responsibility.

The introduction, some years ago and the continuance now of these yearly contracts, appears to furnish the inducement to labor leaders to stage another demand, on the assumption we have nothing to lose and possibly something to gain. I would sincerely suggest, on behalf of so many who benefit from industrial conditions, that a totally new conception be entered into, ruling out or dispensing entirely with these yearly contracts.

Catholics and Politics

Re John Lamb's letter, insinuating that the Catholic Church is a hindrance to freedom; may I point out that we, in Canada, have had more than one Roman Catholic prime minister and they all carried out their work successfully and with no interference between church and state.

Mr. Lamb states that in countries which are almost 100 per cent Catholic, the leader should, by constitution, be a Catholic. Isn't that obvious? Since the Reformation, has there ever been a Catholic prime minister in a Protestant country like England? Or wouldn't it be ridiculous to have a Christian leader for countries like India and Egypt? Instead of referring to the constitution of these Catholic countries, Mr. Lamb would do well to look into Article VI of the U.S. Constitution which states: No religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

GEORGE COOMBS.

Britain and Capitalism

I would like to join issue with Don Poirier's statement published in The Victoria Daily Times that British society is capitalist, and that the lot of the majority is exploitation, want and the fear of war.

A capitalist society is one where the wealth is largely in the hands of private individuals who use it for their own ends. Hence Britain today with a considerable group of industries, including coal, gas, electricity, civil air and inland transport under public control and ownership, and a steeply graded income tax system including the payment of surtax on incomes over $2,000, is to a limited extent only capitalist.

The opportunity for exploitation of the worker with the establishment of wages councils and state provision for investigation, conciliation and arbitration in the event of disputes, has been drastically reduced. Want, in any serious degree, has been eliminated through the national insurance scheme giving free doctoring, hospital and consultant service, and unemployment, sickness and retirement benefits as needed, together with supplementary payments from taxes being available in the form of national assistance where insurance benefits are gravely inadequate.

Fear of war remains, however, the lot of us all, in Britain as elsewhere.

From Our Files

Factors Missing

The dynamic factors that caused economic growth of that magnitude in those previous periods appear to be missing today, however.

And, in the past, government could balance the immigration tap on or off to availability of jobs. In future, immigration will continue to play an important role in the growth of the labor force, but it is declining in importance as a balancing tool.

If immigration was cut off completely tomorrow, the labor force would still grow by 500,000 in the next five years—more than it grew from 1950 to 1955 when 150,000 immigrants a year were arriving.

There are many arguments in favor of higher immigration, and not less. A slowdown in immigration, or in population growth generally, slows down demand for consumer products of all kinds. From 1951-1955, our population grew by 12.1 per cent. From 1956-1960 it dropped to 10.7 per cent. Family formation figures for 1958 and 1959 are lower than for any other year in the post-war period.

This then is the anatomy of our job crisis. The proposed solutions will be numerous and conflicting over the next year or two. But time is running out, and nothing is needed quite so much as action.

OTTAWA:

Immigration And Jobs

By TOM GOULD

CANADA is suffering from a severe case of retarded growth. The nation has suffered through this economic malady before in the postwar era, but has always shown the ability to snap back. Each time, however, the recovery was a little slower, and a little less definite. As we have proceeded through successive booms and busts, the rate of unemployment, has shown a strong tendency to drift higher and higher; it accumulates both in real terms and as a percentage of the working force.

DBS has come up with comparative figures that illustrate this nagging growth of the unemployed.

The booms reached their peak in 1951, 1956, and 1959.

The percentage of unemployed in each of these years was: 1951, two per cent; 1956, 3.1 per cent; 1959, 5.6 per cent.

The busts came in 1950, 1954, and 1958. The percentage of unemployed for those years was: 1950, 3.2 per cent; 1954, 4.3 per cent, and 1958, 6.6 per cent.

Peeking Through a Loophole

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Although I have no figures to back up this statement, it seems safe to say that one of the fastest-growing industries in the United States is the manufacture of loopholes.

The largest loophole factory is, of course, the U.S. Congress, which has managed to apply the mass production technique to this ancient handicraft. I would estimate that Congress spends about one-third of its time passing laws that open loopholes, and about one-third passing laws that close them. What it does with the other third is anybody's guess.

The legislative output is carefully sifted by private prospectors, who hope to discover hidden loopholes that will turn a quick profit. The market value varies widely, but finding a single loophole, particularly in a tax law, is tantamount to striking oil.

Some of the more ingenious loophole experts are foreigners, who have a rich lode to mine in the American tariff laws. Numerous examples of their work can be seen in a 10-volume study recently submitted to Congress by the U.S. Tariff Commission.

I was especially intrigued by the volume of loopholes because it showed a rare sample of a loophole within a loophole, or rather an open loophole within a closed loophole.

On two occasions, the commission said,

Congress has passed laws "to close a loophole in the tariff laws by which foreign producers are by artful manipulation of a product, avoiding an import duty imposed specifically for the protection of the rubber-soled footwear industry."

But in both cases, it added, the legislation was "so complex and ambiguous as to be unintelligible to persons not familiar with the background and legislative history, and troublesome and difficult even for those who have knowledge thereof."

In other words, the closed loophole was still rather porous.

As I understand it, the duty on rubber footwear is higher than the duty on leather footwear. But if the shoes are made of both materials, the duty rate of the more expensive material applies and leather is more expensive than rubber.

Therefore, foreign manufacturers who were exporting rubber-soled sneakers to this country began to put strips of leather between the inner and outer soles. This enabled them to pay the leather sole duty rather than the higher rubber sole duty. You get the picture?

Later on, they opened the loophole a little wider by making sneakers with leather tongues. This made the leather sole duty apply to the whole shoe rather than just the sole.

Congress is expected to try to close the various tariff loopholes next year, but by that time, I fear, someone will have invented an electronic loophole detector. If so, his fortune will be made.

TODAY'S TRAFFIC TROUBLE TIP

Think Ahead on Lane-Changing

An anonymous writer wants us to settle a clash of opinion which illustrates the hazard of turning from the wrong lane.

He says, referring to the diagram:

"Driver 'B' (outside lane) makes his turn while red light is still against 'A' (centre lane), and 'C' takes the place vacated by 'B'.

"The green light comes on, 'A' starts forward and in the centre of the intersection gives his blinker signal to turn right to the gas pumps.

"He starts his turn on reaching the driveway. Now, 'C' claims that he had the right of way and 'A' had no right to cut him off.

"What is the right answer?"

The answer is obvious.

'A' THE CULPRIT

Whether or not "A" was in the proper lane, he had no right to change lanes when it was unsafe. Had he looked he would have seen "C", presumably going straight through, hard on his right rear.

But in fact, "A" should have been in the other lane for making such a turn. He probably acted on impulse, rather than taking his time to get into the outside lane and circling the block to approach properly.

Of course, he should have known at least a block in advance that he wanted to turn into the garage and so have come up to the intersection in the outside lane.

Educational Aid Program For Africans

PARIS (AP)—The 11th general conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization ended Thursday after deciding to give priority to education in Africa.

The conference, which started Nov. 14, approved an emergency assistance program for Africa and especially The Congo. The program calls for teachers' colleges, educational research, new schools, provision of teachers and teachers' aids, and assistance to educational institutions.

The conference also voted a $32,513,228 budget for 1961-62. An extra £12,000,000 also will be provided by the UN Technical Assistance Fund. The delegates decided that a fourth building is necessary for its Paris headquarters, which was inaugurated about two years ago. The fourth building will cost more than $3,500,000.

The delegates also approved a four-year oceanographic expedition to the Indian Ocean. The expedition will leave shortly.

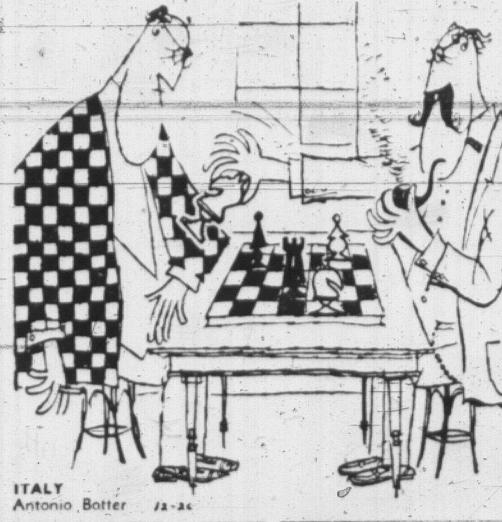

The conference further decided to aid members in developing their press and radio facilities, particularly educational broadcasts in Africa. Training courses for journalists will be held in Africa and Asia.

UNESCO will finance 1,200 exchange scholarships and administer another 500 for students, teachers and workers.

COUP CRUSHED

Selassie Returns To Cheers

(Times News Services) Emperor Haile Selassie returned to Asmara, Ethiopia, today to the cheers of thousands amid reports that loyalist troops have crushed a coup d'état in his capital, Addis Ababa.

A broadcast picked up in French Somaliland from a station describing itself as the Voice of Ethiopia said the emperor was returning to his capital of Addis Ababa.

The broadcast was quoted by Reuters news agency.

Other reports reaching London said the situation had been restored to normal in Addis Ababa after bitter fighting between forces supporting and those opposed to the emperor.

The reports said Haile Selassie would be back to Addis Ababa soon and would make a broadcast to the nation.

ADDIS ABABA BATTLE

The crew of an Ethiopian airliner which arrived in Khartoum from Asmara reported that bitter fighting was going on in Addis Ababa and that troops in Asmara were ready to march behind the emperor into the capital.

Abebe reported by telephone that there were 10,000 soldiers and a complete air force wing in Asmara "all loyal to Haile Selassie."

Abebe also reported in a telegram received by the Ethiopian embassy in Bonn that loyal Ethiopian troops are forcing Selassie's opponents to surrender and the country will soon be under the emperor's control again.

The crew of the airliner which arrived in Khartoum said the imperial guard had captured Addis Ababa airport from the rebels and that fighting had increased tremendously in the streets of the capital.

SOEST, West Germany (CP)—A Canadian army private is in detention here Thursday pending an inquiry into his 20-day stay behind the Iron Curtain.

Private John Stob, 19, of Ceylon, Sask., was returned by Russian officers Wednesday after they had visited the headquarters of the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade group here and conferred with the brigade commander, Brig. D. C. Cameron of Alexandria, Ont.

The Russians claimed Stob had asked for political asylum after crossing into East Germany Nov. 24, but that it was refused.

Stob, who joined the army 10 months ago, arrived in Germany Nov. 19. He is a member of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

His mother is listed as Mrs. Mabel Eckval of Ceylon, Sask.

No Engineering Problems At Dam Site—Williston

B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said today there has been no difficulty in preliminary engineering on the Arrow Lakes dam site for the Columbia River power scheme.

"It was reported in a dispatch from Ottawa today that Bert Herridge, CCF MP for Kootenay West had raised in the Commons the possibility the High Arrow cannot be erected because of foundation difficulties.

In reply Resources Minister Dinsdale said "preliminary studies have indicated there are no insurmountable difficulties."

(Outside the House, according to the dispatch, it was learned that B.C. Power Commission engineers conducting test borings at the High Arrow site have run into a deep channel of silt.

"There has been no trouble at all with the High Arrow," he said in answer to reports from Ottawa that B.C. Power Commission engineers had struck snags in preliminary drilling.

"What do they know about it in Ottawa?" he asked.

"I indicated to them we were having a little trouble at Duncan Lake, a little difficulty with the footings."

Duncan Lake is the smallest of three dams which B.C.

are attempting to get a sufficient general wording on location of the dams in the treaty to allow for public hearings on the exact locations to be held later.

The coast guard said the six survivors who died later were picked up by helicopter.

In Brooklyn, Mrs. Agnes MacDonald told of hearing the crash from a short distance away. It "sounded like an explosion," she said. "Then I saw the smoke and ran toward the scene."

"There was a plane, completely wrecked, in the street. The flames were so intense I couldn't get any closer than a block."

William Noble, a nearby resident, said he was in his apartment when "the wall came in. My wife was thrown toward me. Then I heard a roar. We ran out."

Appeal Court Upholds Gaglardi's Conviction

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister P. A.

Gaglardi Thursday lost an appeal against a contempt of court conviction for which he was fined $1,000.

The unanimous ruling of three judges of the B.C. Court of Appeal said "we have been gravitated inevitably to our decision."

M. M. McFarlane, Mr. Gaglardi's counsel, said later a decision on whether to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada will not be made until the appeal court hands down its reasons for judgment.

The minister was fined for authorizing his department to send $75,000 to Clyde W.

Thornton of Troy, Mont. An earlier court order had ruled that up to $25,000 was to be paid by the highways department to the Montreal Trust Company.

REDS MANNING GUNS HITTING VIENTIANNE

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Americans evacuated from the Laotian capital of Vientiane today claimed that either North Vietnamese or Russian gunners were handling the Soviet Howitzers bombarding the city with deadly accuracy.

Several Americans who have trained Laos troops under military aid program said Laotian gunners were not firing the artillery supplied Capt. Kong Le's leftist forces by the Russians.

One American who insisted he remain unnamed said Kong's artillery is laying down "beautiful patterns of fire across the city centre." He said shells were raking the city in a carpet formation in barrages of intervals of five feet.

He added: "I have helped train Laotian artillery men and have never seen them shoot like this before."

French Stop, Search West German Ship

HAMBURG (AP) — French naval vessels, ignoring official Bonn protests, stopped and searched another West German ship in international waters off the North African coast, the Association of German Shipowners said today.

The association said the 4,185-ton freighter Archsum was stopped Thursday about 54 miles from Gibraltar by an unidentified French warship and searched for arms.

The Archsum, travelling from Turkey and Greece to Hamburg with ore and an assorted cargo, was allowed to proceed after showing the ship had no scheduled calls at North African ports.

During the last three years, 15 German freighters have been stopped by the French in the Mediterranean. Three were searched in the last 10 days.

The French claim war material for the Algerian rebels is being carried by German ships.

UN Hospital Team Arrested in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — Congolese troops have arrested 51 Austrian military medical personnel in the town of Bukavu in the eastern Congo's Kivu Province, the United Nations reported today.

One woman nurse was also arrested but was released with the help of Nigerian UN troops. Negotiations are going on with the local authorities to obtain the release of the Austrians, who arrived earlier this week to set up a UN hospital.

A UN spokesman said the Congolese first surrounded the hospital building Thursday and later moved in to take all the staff to prison.

'FALLEN INTO SERIOUS ERROR'

Editor Raps Magazines For Protective Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — A noted newspaper editor today criticized the Canadian magazine industry for trying to "lay its economic problems upon the doorstep of the government."

B. T. Richardson, editor of the Toronto Telegram, in a personal brief to the royal commission on publications, said: "In my view, the magazine industry that has lobbied for this inquiry . . . has fallen into a serious error from which it should withdraw quickly, as soon as the probable consequences are fully understood of the action that it is requesting."

Establishment of the commission should not, he said, "mislead anyone into thinking that the preservation of a Canadian identity rests entirely, or even largely, upon the adoption of protective measures for the Canadian magazine industry."

The periodical press exercises an important function in circulating ideas and disseminating information to Canadian readers, but it does not

PROBE CHIEF IN OUTBURST

Anti-Americanism Blast

TORONTO (CP) — Graig O'Leary, fiery Ottawa newspaper editor, Thursday criticized anti-Americanism in Canada.

"I believe that every evening Canadians should get down on their knees and thank God for our good neighbors," he said.

Mr. O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal, was speaking as head of Canada's royal commission on publications.

He said he was moved to protest against repeated anti-American references in briefs appearing before him. Many have taken the line that easy entry of United States magazines into Canada on an overflow circulation basis was ruinous to the Canadian periodical publishing industry.

Others criticized the set-up of Canadian editions of U.S. magazines.

"When the bombs begin to fall on Canada, they will not be American bombs," Mr. O'Leary said.

"Let us stop spoiling a good cause such as we have here with this strained anti-Americanism."

The outburst came after the reading of a brief submitted by Age Publications Ltd. of Toronto, which publishes six business organs.

Mr. O'Leary told managing director L. A. Kingsland: "I'm disturbed by the . . . anti-American feeling with which it is shot through . . . are we to have no interest in foreign affairs at all?"

Mr. Kingsland said the average Canadian "knows more of United States affairs than he does of Canadian affairs."

"I can't believe that at all," Mr. O'Leary said.

RAPS MINISTER

The chairman also took issue with a scholarly young Anglican minister, Rev. A. Gordon Baker, editor and general manager of the Canadian Churchman, national publication of the Anglican Church of Canada.

Mr. Baker, referring to what he called almost universal dishonest advertising practices said:

"Look at the field of advertising — autos, movies, soap — much is dishonest in fact or intention."

His statement that "many of our national publications lack the fire of idealistic conviction and often sacrifice accuracy of fact for a good story," drew additional fire from the commissioner.

RATES ON CAR INSURANCE SAME IN '61

MONTREAL (CP) — The All Canada Insurance Federation in a statement Thursday said a survey indicated Canadian motorists generally will pay about the same for automobile insurance in 1961 as in 1960.

Small increases in premiums for third-party liability insurance will apply in some of the larger cities.

The federation said many companies will introduce a new coverage, called all-perils, which will consolidate the present collision and comprehensive insurance on the motorist's own car.

CMS Announces $3,000,000 Trail Project

TRAIL (CP) — Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Limited has announced a $3,000,000 revision of its zinc treatment system here.

Ralph D. Perry, vice-president and general manager, emphasized the project was not an expansion of the company's zinc-producing capacity but rather a realignment of metallurgical processes.

The expenditure, he said, had become necessary because quantities of smelter residues, stockpiled here and processed for some years into about 75 tons of refined zinc a day, would be exhausted by early 1962.

These residues had been treated through an oxide leaching plant and it is now necessary to build a new roaster and attendant gear to process sulphite concentrates from company and other mines, sufficient to make up the production which would otherwise be lost when the smelter residues are used up.

Highland-Bell Sale Proposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shareholders of Highland-Bell Mine will be asked next week to allow the prosperous mine to cash in on a $2,000,000 tax allowance by approving sale of the mine to a worked-out mining subsidiary.

A special meeting will be held Dec. 21. Shareholders of the silver-lead-zinc-gold operation will be asked to approve sale of Highland-Bell assets to Mastodon Zinc Mines Limited. Under the deal, Highland-Bell will become tax free for about eight years.

West Must Decide

(18th of a Series)

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

When a few statesmen of the Western world—Governor Acheson in the United States, Dr. Ludwig Erhard in Germany, Mr. Lester Pearson in Canada and others less famous—propose that the North Atlantic community of nations should stop tampering with the perimeter of their joint problems and make a clean economic breakthrough to greater prosperity, they are met with a telling objection.

If, it is said, the breakthrough involves, as it must, a reduction in tariffs then it is sure to hurt somebody. Of course it is. Economic omelettes are not made without breaking eggs. But the damage to some interests unavoidable in any tariff readjustment are usually exaggerated and the benefits flowing from it under-estimated.

It is no longer necessary to argue these facts in theory because they have been proved, by a classic demonstration, in fact. The six nations of the European Common Market undertook their own breakthrough by a drastic reduction in tariffs among themselves and the beneficial results were instantaneous, spectacular and permanent.

Two Questions

Certainly some inefficient industries, nesting cosily behind ancient tariff walls, were compelled to change their ways. Old-fashioned factories had to be modernized. Costs had to be held down, productivity raised, workers sometimes shifted from one plant to another, but total employment grew and unemployment disappeared.

The sharp, cleansing winds of competition drove the Six into greater efficiency, larger wealth and economic growth unequalled anywhere else in the Western world. Are the North Atlantic nations outside the Six prepared to accept that kind of healthy self-discipline in return for the chance of a new and ever-spreading prosperity?

That is the first question, unanswered yet. We may begin to get an answer from Mr. Kennedy when he enters the White House, for assuredly the answer must come in the main from him. Without American leadership, there can be no hope of a breakthrough on the Atlantic.

The second question is raised almost as an excuse for evading the first. If, it is said, the North Atlantic nations begin to spread the methods of the Six across Europe and the Atlantic then they must disminate in trade and tariffs. Actually no responsible statesman is proposing that. That is assumed, overnight, or even in the near future, the North Atlantic nations must be their main purpose. One of Canada's leading trade experts put it to this reporter: "I'm not worried about whom we include in a new trade grouping. What worries me is whom we include out of."

He had in mind, of course, such nations as India, Japan, Australia, and others whose goodwill is essential to the Atlantic nations. He was thinking also of the whole Latin American zone. If the North Atlantic nations were to discriminate against all these in tariffs and trade the economic damage inflicted on them could be severe. The political consequences would be disastrous.

Thus presented, any attempt to rationalize and strengthen the North Atlantic community appears dangerous and self-defeating. The community would prosper while its allies elsewhere would be impoverished and antagonized. But that is a false presentation of the whole project.

If the dangers of discrimination are to be avoided, as they must be, any new trading structure built across the Atlantic must be accessible to any outside nations which care to join and accept the tariff rules of the club. And these nations must face an undeniable fact: There is no hope of adequate aid for them, or adequate markets (their sovereign need, far more important than aid) unless the great Western industrial nations can grow and prosper.

The growth and prosperity of the Atlantic region is everyone's interest and hope.

Strict Logic

Moreover, no responsible statesman argues that the pretty strict logic applied to the manufacturing industries of the European Six could be applied all at once to the much broader and more complex North Atlantic community as a whole. Just as within the Six there are large exceptions to the rules, such as the whole farm industry, so there could be exceptions to the rules of an enlarged trading area.

Indeed, a myriad of alternative, pragmatic, practical compromises of this sort would be opened up if the North Atlantic nations faced their true and depressing facts of life, and resolved on the simple proposition that they must be overcome. What matters is not the detail of any break out of the present stagnant Western economy but the general direction of policy. Shall we stand still, move forward or retreat?

Too Simple

(The definition given to a North Atlantic breakthrough by its enemies is usually narrow, over-simplified and false. The very words "free trade area," as generally used, are far too simple and semantically confusing. They conjure up visions of a flood of cheap foreign goods overwhelming the North Atlantic market.

The sharp, cleansing winds of competition drove the Six into greater efficiency, larger wealth and economic growth unequalled anywhere else in the Western world. Are the North Atlantic nations outside the Six prepared to accept that kind of healthy self-discipline in return for the chance of a new and ever-spreading prosperity?

That is the first question, unanswered yet. We may begin to get an answer from Mr. Kennedy when he enters the White House, for assuredly the answer must come in the main from him. Without American leadership, there can be no hope of a breakthrough on the Atlantic.

The second question is raised almost as an excuse for evading the first. If, it is said, the North Atlantic nations begin to spread the methods of the Six across Europe and the Atlantic then they must dis-

CMA Calls for Tax Cuts In Brief Presented to PM

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Manufacturers' Association called today for a reduction in corporation and personal income taxes.

They are too high at present for the long-term development of the Canadian economy, said a brief submitted to Prime Minister Diefenbaker over the signature of J. C. Whitelaw, general manager of the association.

The 49-page brief also called for:

1. Tax incentives, including increased capital cost allowances, to encourage "natural development and increased employment". These had been used in the past to stimulate the economy.

2. Additional capital cost allowances for new industries beginning the manufacture of new products in Canada and for existing industries undertaking the manufacture of goods not formerly made in Canada.

SEEK CONCESSIONS

3. Tax concessions to stimulate exports. The association suggested either a lower income tax rate or no income tax at all on that proportion of a manufacturer's income attributable to increased export business; or a reduction in income tax based on a percentage of increased value of manufactured goods exported.

4. Greater encouragement of research in Canada by permitting corporations to write off separate collection of corporate taxes by each of the provinces in one year their capital expenditures on scientific research.

The federal government has offered to allow any province wishing to do so to collect on money expended for scientific research.

CREEPING OVER HIGH TRESTLE spanning Nanaimo River, locomotive No. 16 readies herself for last run to Comox Logging dumping ground in Ladysmith. (Times Photo by Irving Strickland.)

NO. 11, NO. 16 HAD 68 YEARS' LOGGING

Gallant Horses Pasture-Bound

By DON INGHAM, Times Island Editor

LADYSMITH — Two old iron horses went to the barn today after a combined 68 years of service for Comox Logging and Railway Company here and on the company's Courtenay operations.

They are locomotives No. 11 and No. 16, whose steam boilers and thrashing pistons just aren't as efficient as the internal combustion engine, generators, and motors of the diesel unit which will replace them.

They made their last hauls today on the 22-mile run from the company's Nanaimo Lakes loading works to the booming ground here.

Their last regular hauls,

Away With Long-Spouted Oil Cans

Maintenance cost also are expected to drop. Diesels spend much less time in the shop than their steam counterparts, and call for less attention while operating. (No running around with a long-spouted oil can at each end of a run, no getting up steam hours before the engine is to be used, and no laborious and constant re-packing of joints against the nagging pressure of 175 pounds pressure of steam.)

In order to give the two glamorous old workers a bit of a sendoff, the company invited press, and radio, and television crews to the operation Thursday to take a final ride in their cabs.

No. 11, built by Baldwin in 1923, was used at Shelton, brakeman.

She'll Need Heavier Trestles

The diesel also is a Baldwin, built in 1943 for the U.S. Navy, and bought earlier this year by Comox. Weighing 120 tons as against 95 tons for her steam sisters, she will need heavier trestles along the road, and a few shake-down runs before her eight-cylinder, 1,000-horsepower motor is ready to take on the job permanently.

No doubt the diesels will build up glamor and folklore of their own, but they will have to go a long way for a long time to match the dirty, smoky, noisy, steam locomotives.

A ride in the cab of No. 16, such as given the luckier news-

Can't Duplicate Steam Whistle

Finally, there is the never-to-be-duplicated steam whistle, which never sounds better than from inside the cab.

The air horn of diesels is effective, but nothing can match the nostalgic cry of steam, and engineer Bernard Churchill is a true virtuoso with the whistle cord. He can make a whistle bellow for friends, moan for its hours of loneliness in deep woods, and scream triumphantly to mark arrival at the "beach" with another 25 cars of logs.

The company, which has become almost synonymous with railroad logging in B.C., started operations in Courtenay in 1910, and has had 15 locomotives, but never a No. 13.

The Ladysmith operation started in the 1930s. Bill

Chalmers, general superintendent for the company's Ladysmith-Nitinat area, joined in 1936 as a fireman and brakeman, with six years of service with the company at Courtenay. He also helped build the track into the vast Nanaimo Lakes operation of the company in 1942.

Superintendent of the Nanaimo Lakes operation is Gordon Naylor, a former Nanaimo steam engineer. He is responsible for all operations in the lake area.

But no electric heater will replace the cozy warmth of the steam boiler, especially first thing on a winter morning, according to old trainmen.

BERNARD CHURCHILL
... new manoeuvres

Neat, Natty Controls In Diesels

A new set of operating manœuvres face the crew which will take over the Comox Logging and Railway Company diesel locomotive for its 22-mile haul from Nanaimo Lakes to Ladysmith.

Two steam locomotives are being retired today, and already engineer Bernard Churchill has made a yard run or two with the diesel.

His throttle is a tiny thing compared to the authoritative bar which spans the back end of a steam boiler, and his reverse lever is a switch.

In the steam cab a huge lever rising from the floor reverses the valve action, and gives the locie its go-back-come-ahead control.

A neat panel of flickering needles replaces scattered brass gauges on the "steam-pot" and shiny aluminum surrounds the engineer and fireman instead of the grimy interior of a steam cab.

But no electric heater will replace the cozy warmth of the steam boiler, especially first thing on a winter morning, according to old trainmen.

TRAFFIC FINES

In Saanich police court Thursday:

Dorothy Browner, 930 Tulip, $30 for careless driving.

Norman Scott, 123 Conard Street, $40 and restricted to driving for business purposes only for one month for careless driving.

Chester O. Myers, 9005 East Saanich, $30 for speeding. Carl Heinz Ryoda, 4034 Cumberland, $15 for speeding.

SLAVE TO GAUGE

'The Shadow' Must Have Fine Touch

Slave to the pressure gauge on a steam locomotive is the fireman, whose job it is to see that 175 pounds of steam are at the service of the engineer no matter what demands he must make.

George Russell is one of these, who had the task of helping to bring Comox Logging and Railway Company's No. 16 to Ladysmith on its last regular run today.

The old steamer, with its sister No. 11, is being retired in favor of a diesel locomotive.

The fireman is a faithful shadow of the engineer. If the engineer opens the throttle, the fireman opens his oil valve just enough to maintain a full head. If he admits too much oil, then he will pop his safety valve and draw dirty looks from the engineer.

MORE SCORN

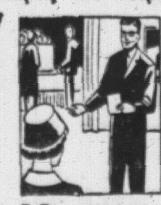

When the engineer closes his throttle, he must close his oil valve, otherwise he will pop the safety valve again and draw more scorn from the engineer.

Open a little, close a little, open going upgrade, closed going down, he anticipates his engineer's every move if he is a good fireman (and George Russell is one) and can keep pressure within one-quarter pound for the length of a run.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Mitchell and Mrs. E. Espinwall have been appointed to the sick committee of the Old Age Pensioners' Association No. 1.

Association officials also announced that there will be no meeting Wednesday, Dec. 21, as originally scheduled.

Keep Eyes On Ken

By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UPI) — Arnold Palmer still is the man to beat as the pro golfers get set for another trek down the sunshine trail but quiet Art Wall, who could do it himself, suggests today that everybody keep an eye on young Ken Venturi.

"If anybody could have two big years in a row, it would seem that Palmer is the man who could do it," says the masters champion and leading money winner of 1959. "He's strong, confident and is the longest, straightest driver we have."

But take it from Wall, who rejoined the tour in the West Palm Beach Open last week, there isn't much but the "right bounce at the right time" which separates the top 12 on the dollar divot circuit.

"Personally, I'm looking for Venturi to make a move for a phenomenal year," predicts Wall. "He has the all-around game and all he needs is a couple of wins and he'll be off."

TOUGH COMPETITION

And with the younger element crowding closer all the time, slender Art likes the come-through chances of John Pott, a 29-year-old, and Bob Gosly, also 29.

Palmer, of course, was the "player of the year" as he captured the U.S. Open, and the Masters while banking a near record $71,716. He well may top Ted Kroll's old mark of $72,835 what with two tournaments remaining before the year ends.

"But it's tough to try to figure whether he can keep going," Wall explains. "The competition is so tough that only a thread separates the top players. It's a question of whether you get the right bounce or the right putt at the right time."

FINISHED SECOND

Wall is reluctant to talk about the chances of burly young Jack Nicklaus, the Ohio state star, pulling a modern Bobby Jones by dethroning the pros in such big scrambles as the Masters or the Open.

Nicklaus finished second, a mere two shots back of Palmer in the 1960 open.

"Nicklaus has a wonderful game but, even if you aren't playing for your bread and butter, the pressure builds awfully thick when you run down at the finish in one of the big ones," Wall pondered. "You may say he has the desire without the pressure but the pressure is there."

HUNGER HELPS

"Frank Stranahan never had the financial necessity of winning and certainly he had the desire," Wall added. "I think Frank experimented too much with his game. Maybe Nicklaus hasn't done this. But us 'hungry' fellows have the biggest desire, I honestly believe."

Wall isn't one to talk much about himself but he has to be counted whenever you look ahead to probable winners. He suffered a kidney infection this year and won only $4,648 before leaving the tour. When it cleared up, he came back and in four months ran his winnings to $27,927. His big score was a six-shot triumph in the Canadian Open.

"I've been practicing a lot but taking a real vacation, too," he says. "Now I'm about ready to go back to work."

Something in the manner in which the quiet man of the midiron said it bodes ill for Palmer and all the rest.

Injunction Halted Sale of Ti-Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Controller elect Vic Cops Thursday was granted an injunction preventing sale of the Hamilton Tiger-Cat football club to a group of five citizens.

Cops, in applying for the injunction, commented: "I feel that the citizens of Hamilton should know more about the deal before the sale is consummated."

The Tiger-Cats now are a community-owned club, only one in the Big Four League.

HARPER HANDED FIRST LOSS

B.C.'s defending curling champions appear to be in the midst of a rough scrap right in their own back yard.

Glen Harper's rink from Duncan, again one of the strong favorites for the Vancouver Island championship, took its first loss Thursday night to the throw the Duncan district playdowns wide open.

Harper, Fred Duncan and Gary Merritt each have 3-1 won-lost records in the six-link round-robin.

Duncan, who threw second rocks for Harper last year, defeated his one-time skip 10-5

Leafs May Be Ailing But Habs Hurt Most

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs seem to thrive on injuries. With five regulars out of action with assorted breaks, bruises and twists, the Leafs defeated Montreal Canadiens 4-2 in Montreal Thursday night—Montreal's first loss in nine games.

In the National Hockey League's only other action, Detroit Red Wings battled New York Rangers to a 1-1 tie at Detroit.

The last-skating Leafs cut Montreal's lead to 2-1 in the second when Bob Pulford banged home Eddie Shack's rebound.

In the third period, two goals in less than a minute put Toronto ahead to stay. Centre Billy Harris took rookie Dave Keon's pass and scored at 13:18. Rookie Bob Nevin found the puck lying just off the crease while a furious scramble went on in front of the Montreal net and poked it home at 14:16.

Montreal coach Toe Blake pulled Hodge out of the nets for an extra forward with less than a minute to go and Toronto's Frank Mahovlich scored an easy goal into the open net.

CONTINUES HOT PACE

It was the 27th goal of the season for the big left winger and his 13th in the last seven games. It kept him two goals ahead of Moore in the league's torrid race for the goal-getting championship.

The Leafs had defenceman Allan Stanley back in action, playing with his broken jaw wired up. Missing, though, were Dick Duff, George Armstrong, Carl Brewer, Ron Stewart and Larry Regan.

New York's "Gump" Worsley stopped 31 shots in the wide-open game at Detroit. The only one he couldn't handle came midway through the second period when Gordie Howe, who had just missed the open corner of the net, tipped in Pete Goegan's long drive.

Veteran Bill Gadsby scored for New York, whipping a 35-foot drive home after taking a pass from captain Red Sullivan.

Hockey Boss Asks Punch To Explain

LONDON (AP) — The British Boxing Board of Control Thursday accused the United States National Boxing Association of trying to "set up their own world titles."

Teddy Waltham, secretary of the British board, attacked the Americans following their invitation to Chic Calderwood, British light-heavyweight champion, to fight Erich Schoppe, Germany's European champion, in an "elimination" tournament for the world title.

The NBA recently stripped Archie Moore of his world light-heavy crown because it failed to defend it within a stipulated time.

"We are not going to accept these arbitrary rulings of the NBA. Who are they to say the title is vacant? Naturally we cannot agree to one of our own boxers taking part in an elimination tournament for a championship that is not vacant," Waltham said.

The big animals refuse to be dislodged from the area and Jasper Park workers have been kept busy replacing the hay.

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Four friendly moose appear to have taken up permanent residence on the runs of a new ski jump built here for the Canadian junior ski trials next February.

The runs were covered with straw and hay to provide a holding base for snow should there be a thaw. The moose have been free-loading on the hay and bedding down in the straw.

MACRAE LEADING NANAIMO PLAYDOWNS

Results of games played so far would indicate Nanaimo curlers are experiencing the most interesting Consol's battles. How else can you explain the 15 won-lost record of Dave Dunn and Bill Karjal's 1-4 mark? Both are experienced bonspiels who have certainly fared better in past playdowns.

In Victoria, where Tony Gukoski leads the field with a 6-0 mark, four rinks are still alive. And hope springs eternal for six rinks in Nanaimo, three in Duncan, three in Alberni and six at Courtenay.

At Port Alberni, a double round-robin between five rinks, the leaders are Bob Cummings and Jules Wenezenki with Harry Stizaker having an outside chance. Cummings is 5-1 and Wenezenki 4-1, and it's all but certain that the second meeting between the two rinks will decide it all.

Sweeping Up Loose Straws: A best-of-three playoff between rinks from Oak Bay and Victoria High is required to decide the district's high school curling champions. First game of the playoffs will be played tonight with John MacBride, Gene Koster and Brock Wilson each lost

DOROHOLY SOLD

To 'Peg? 'No!' Says Ed

Veteran Western Hockey League centre Ed Doroholay, sold by Vancouver Canucks to Winnipeg Warriors Thursday, says he "can't comment" on the deal because he hasn't been officially notified.

No comment? Ed Doroholay? That's not like Eddie, grasper debater and the WHL's all-time point score who makes his home in Victoria.

But Eddie did comment on why he can't comment:

He said: "I have not been officially informed of the transfer of my contract to Winnipeg, so naturally I can't comment." Another point that cannot be ignored is the size of my contract with Vancouver.

Truthfully, it ain't large. Mr. Hall (Canucks' owner), I understand, would like to help the have-nots. I admire this and I, too, love hockey, and have tried to further the game both on and off the ice. Winnipeg needs help, but not at my expense. I cannot see myself in a Winnipeg uniform at the going prices."

Doroholay will not report under the terms of his present contract.

The 31-year-old centre, all-time point-getter in the WHL with 812, has made no secret of dissatisfaction with treatment received from Vancouver since breaking his leg a year ago.

It is still not known when Doroholay will be able to play again, but presumably not until late January.

Packers Shoot For Grid Title

Cougars Move With Ford

The Victoria Cougars, who chalked up a 4-2 victory Wednesday night at Edmonton, continue their seven-game road trip tonight with a return battle against the skidding Flyers.

Cougars, who have rebounded in their three last games after slipping into last place, moved out of the cellar with Wednesday's victory.

Coach Bob Waterfield will lead off with quarterback Bill Wade, whose 66-yard touchdown run was enough to beat the Colts 10-3 last week.

Waterfield said Tom Wilson will start as fullback for the injured Joe Marconi, flanked by halfbacks Jon Arnett and Dick Bass.

FIVE GAMES SUNDAY

The Green Bay-Los Angeles engagement is the only one Saturday. Five games are set for Sunday.

In the Western Division, the Packers meet the 49ers at San Francisco and the fifth-place Chicago Lions at Detroit. In the Eastern Division, Philadelphia Eagles go against the last-place Redskins at Washington.

The fleet winger collected a goal and an assist Wednesday to boost his point total to 17 points, three behind centre Gerry Goyer.

Bill Saunders holds down third place with 16 points, one in front of Bert Fizzell, Jim Moro and Don Wilson.

OUTDOOR REPORT
BY Doug Peden

Worried because the calendar shows only seven more shopping days until you know when and you're convinced the outdoors type of male you want to please has everything?

Well, there's always something new under the sun and even the best-equipped hunters, anglers and boaters are liable to be pleasantly surprised by what they find under the tree this Christmas.

For instance, binoculars' rate high on the list of most-wanted accessories in a survey of boaters. And just in good time for holiday giving, is a new type that is getting oohs and ahs from the outdoor set.

Developed in Japan and now being imported, they are technically known as variable-strength or multi-power models, have already been dubbed "zoom" binoculars. By simple adjustment, they can be used at any strength between seven and 12 power without removing them from the eyes.

Major problem of the old high-power telescope was that aboard a rolling craft it was difficult to get a steady sight on a distant lighthouse or ship. For general use afloat, field-glasses should not be unduly powerful or the skipper may seldom be able to spot what he wants to see.

The new binocs should allow a not-too-steady sailor to focus on a marker buoy or boat at the seven-power rating, and then zoom in for detailed identification at the higher power. On land, they could enable a hunter to spot a deer across a valley and then flip the knob and count the points on the buck's antlers.

If the man in your life is a trout enthusiast, it might be mentioned that spin-casting with ultra-light gear is becoming a fad in the U.S. and that fly-casting is making a big comeback across the continent.

Continued improvement in glass rods has helped the fly-fishing rejuvenation. There was a time when glass rods had about as much backbone as a weary willow sapling, but now they have a brisk action that stacks right up with the split-cane jobs and are getting a big play in fly-casting tournaments. You can get a satisfactory one for $35 or pay as much as $35.

The ultra-light spinning outfits are usually used with line of about a two-pound breaking strength, or less. They feel like a feather and handle the lightest lures with surprising efficiency. On one of the lightweight outfits, landing a half-pound trout can be a highly-interesting task. Rods cost about $10, reels from $5 to $15.

Never overlook clothing as a possible gift and any outdoor enthusiast should be pleased if you can find a store that has brought in some of the new foul-weather gear with a thin foam-plastic lining. No heavier than conventional types, the stuff keeps moisture out and heat in. It is pliable and it came through tough ocean tests with flying colors.

New to most anglers is a metered nylon monofilament trolling line that switches color every 25 feet and does away with a lot of guessing or counting turns of a reel.

Among the better-known items is insulated under-wear that does wonders for comfort in a duck blind or on a boat. Top-grade wool shirts are always useful and last for years. Any hunter who travels or shoots around salt water should own a gun case. Nobody ever has too many socks, which should be wool with nylon reinforcement.

That's only part of the selection. Skipping the more expensive stuff, here are a few other items that can help make a man's outdoor life more enjoyable:

DEER HUNTER—Clothing, compass, knife, binoculars, axe, ammunition, waterproof match case, rifle case, cartridge belt, rifle-cleaning kit, flashlight.

BIRD HUNTER—Clothing, waders, shells, decoys, flashlight, vacuum bottle, gun-cleaning kit, hand trap and clay pigeons, gun case.

SALMON FISHERMAN—Clothing, lures, large landing net, nylon trolling line, trolling reel, tackle box, fisherman's pliers, sun glasses, rod holders, life jacket.

TROUT FISHERMAN—Clothing, fly box, flies, spinning kit, sun glasses, lures, landing net, fly line, spinning line, waders, creel, rod, flashlight.

CAMPER—Clothing, sleeping bag, axe, vacuum bottle, portable ice box, camp stove, flashlight, lantern.

BOATMAN—Non-skid shoes, clothing, binoculars, inflating jacket, heavy sweater, rope, sun glasses, flashlight.

There are lots more, but the rest is up to you. Happy shopping!

CHRISTMAS TREE TOURNEY

Plenty of Room
For Lady Golfers

The original entry limit of 112 men is expected to be reached today, but there's a chance additional male golfers may be allowed to take part in the annual Christmas Tree golf tournament.

It depends on the ladies.

A total of 103 males had submitted entries up to Thursday night. Only 20 ladies, however, have filed entries for the popular Boxing Day tournament.

That's far below the limit of 60 set for women golfers and unless there's an increase of interest among the distaff side some of their starting times may be allocated to the men.

The Dec. 26 fairway frolic will be held at Uplands, with the men's field teeing off from both the first and 10th tees in order to get in their 18-hole round. Women will play only nine holes.

An added reward has been tossed into the stocking of prizes. Any player getting a hole-in-one during the tournament will be awarded "free golf for a year." The lucky player will have his 1960 subscription paid to the club from which he, or she, enters.

Two other Victoria area courses will stage their own tournaments for club members. Gorge Vale has scheduled a club tournament for "nominal prizes," while a two-ball mixed foursome is on the books for Victoria Golf Club members on Dec. 26.

Entries for the mixed foursome close Dec. 21. Foursomes will start teeing off at 11 a.m.

The Oak Bay links, incidentally, will be reserved for members only on Dec. 26 and 27.

Dr. George Bigelow, the veteran campaigner who has been turning in some of the best cards of the season lately, will be out to put claim on the first of the winter monthly medals.

George will have to do it on foreign ground.

Dr. Bigelow and Art Donaldson, who has the benefit of home course knowledge, share the lead as the field moves into the third and final round at Gorge Vale on Sunday. Both have 36-hole scores of 143, two strokes ahead of Ron MacLeod.

BUT CHURCH FUND PLANNED Insurance Enough For Rebuilding

There is every indication that the insurance carried by St. John's Anglican Church will be sufficient to pay for restoration of the damage sustained, Capt. T. B. T. Hewett, chairman of the restoration fund, said today.

"However," he added, "we think this is the ideal time to make certain suggested alterations and additions to the existing building."

"To do this we shall require considerable additional funds over and beyond the proceeds from insurance; and that is the true purpose of our fund."

Contributions to the fund continued to reach Capt. Hewett at the church office today.

"We are grateful for all donations, large or small," he said.

The restoration committee had its first meeting in the church hall Thursday but no definite target for the fund was set.

"We shall wait until our plans for rebuilding the church are completed," Capt. Hewett said.

Meantime a very old safe in the basement of burned-out St. John's was opened Thursday afternoon by Major Kirkpatrick Crockett, the church historian.

NATO Man Burned in Bomb Check

PARIS (Reuters) — A NATO security man was badly burned here today when he touched a high-tension wire while making a routine check for bombs in the pact's headquarters building as the three-day annual ministerial conference session opened.

The accident doused lights throughout the building and hundreds of teleprinters fell silent. Power was restored shortly afterward but was cut off again a few minutes later when a technician was burned while repairing the cable.

"They are now drying out at my home."

WARDED

It contained records of the whole history of St. John's from the first baptism 100 years ago to the last wedding held there before the fire.

"The safe was warped by the fierce heat of the flames and we had difficulty getting the door open," Major Crockett said. "Water had seeped in through the edges of the door and some of the records were wet."

"They are now drying out at my home."

Two Chinese Face Fraud Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Two Chinese Canadians were committed Thursday for high court trial after a preliminary hearing on charges of conspiring to procure by fraudulent means admission of Chinese immigrants to Canada.

Travel agent George Chan and grocer Kent Lee, alias Lee Mon Kuem, both elected trial by judge and jury. Chan also faces a charge of making a false document for the admission of Chinese immigrants to Canada.

At Thursday's hearing an elderly man told the court he had the admission paper of his non-existent son to buy food.

Chan Po Chung, 72, told the court he made application for the admission of Chan Yat Sing, his alleged son, knowing that his own son died some years ago.

"I'm old, can't work," he testified. "I wanted to sell the paper for some money to buy food."

He said he received $2,000 from George Chan for going to an immigration office to make application for the entry of Chan Yat Sing to Canada.

Another witness, Mrs. Loo Wah Sit, 40, testified she paid Kent Lee $3,600 for a paper to bring her nephew to Canada. The nephew arrived in Canada as Chan Yat Sing, the "son" of Chan Po Chung.

MONTREAL (CP) — The sumptuous $30,000,000 terminal at Montreal International airport was officially opened Thursday by Transport Minister Balder. Actors Overcome Jitters

"The Holly and the Ivy" by Wynyard Browne

By PETER MATTHEWS

St. Matthias Little Theatre Society players will have a rattling good show tonight and Saturday if they take up where they left off in Thursday night's opener.

Much good work had been done by the director, Vera Trueman. In planning the production she had made excellent use of the small stage and showed a clear understanding of the playwright's intention.

SLOWNESS

John Poulton was at ease and consistent as the Vicar and was only hampered at the beginning by the slowness of his fellow players.

TO LIFE

Paul Dyson was another actor who felt his way into his part and brought it to life. He is a young man with a good sense of comedy.

Doris Exton and Elsie Watson also provided quite effective, if not altogether well-balanced character sketches.

Curtain time tonight and Saturday is 8:15 at St. Matthias Hall where the comedy drama will provide an enjoyable evening.

4 B.C. OLYMPIC SITES STUDIED

$10,000 Grant Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will seek parliamentary approval of a $10,000 grant to be used by the Canadian Olympic Association to find the best site if Canada should act as host for the 1968 Winter Olympic Games.

Health Minister Monteith announced today that the Olympic Association plans to engage engineering consultants to examine the most promising locations. Factors that must be considered include topography, climate, snow conditions, access and accommodation.

The minister said preliminary study by a committee of the association has narrowed down to five number of potential sites. They are the Banff-Lake Louise area in Alberta, Garibaldi Park in British Columbia and the Rossland and Fernie areas in B.C.'s Kootenay district.

The association, Mr. Monteith said, hopes to receive a formal report from the engineering consultants by the end of February. After the report has been studied by association members, a definite choice of a site will be annual meeting in March, he said.

AUSTRIA GOT GAMES

Canada was unsuccessful last year in Munich at a meeting of the International Olympic Committee in a bid to obtain the 1968 Winter Olympics. It was decided that these games will be held at Innsbruck, Austria.

"I am very pleased that it has been possible through this announcement to provide one indication of the means by which this government plans to foster amateur athletics in Canada," Mr. Monteith said.

Pope Names 4 Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John today named four new cardinals.

Two South Americans, an Italian and an American were elevated by the pontiff.

They are Most. Rev. Luis Concha Cordoba, Archbishop of Bogota, Colombia; Most Rev. Jose Umberto Quintero, Archbishop of Caracas, Venezuela; Msgr. Giuseppe Ferretto, a member of the Vatican curia, and Most Rev. Joseph E. Ritter, Archbishop of St. Louis, Mo.

CREATED JAN. 16

They will be created at a secret consistory at the Vatican Jan. 16.

Creation of the four new cardinals will bring the membership of the Sacred College of the Roman Catholic Church to an all-time record of 86.

There was no indication to day that the Pope would make public at the Jan. 16 consistory the names of the three cardinals he designated "in pectore" (in his heart) March 28, 1960.

Elevation of Archbishop Ritter brings the North American representation in the college to eight—six American and two Canadians.

The consistory will be the fourth called by Pope John to create new cardinals since he became Pope only a little more than two years ago.

In the first three consistories he named a total of 38 cardinals plus the three "in pectore." The first three consistories included the Roman Catholic Church's first Negro cardinal, first Japanese cardinal and first Filipino cardinal.

For the first time in history this gave representation in the college to all the world's major races.

Since Pope John brought the strength of the college to 85 last March three cardinals have died.

Of the present 82 cardinals, 31 are Italians and 51 are of 27 other nationalities.

The new makeup of the college after the Jan. 16 consistory will be 32 Italians and 54 of other nationalities.

NEW LAW COURTS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Rising rapidly on proposed civic centre precinct is the new Law Courts building, a big addition to already familiar landmarks in the Courtney-Blanshard-Quadrangle area. Shown in centre, construction is ahead of schedule already. About 120 workmen are pouring the fourth concrete floor and raising cribbing and steel for others. Luney Brothers and Hamilton has until June, 1962, to complete the $1,750,000 building. Other landmarks shown are Royal Theatre, top left; Christ Church Cathedral, top right, and B.C. Power Commission offices, bottom. MONTE ROBERTS

These bright, brisk, mornings, with a touch of frost around the edges, make this Old Man turn his thoughts to skiing.

This is the time of year when I dearly wish to go to a ski-lodge, complete with skis, boots, harness, parka, poles, thermoses of sarsaparilla, and bandages.

The basis of my wish to go to a ski-lodge, of course, is my innate desire to not ski.

Going to a ski-lodge, high in the mountains where the snow is deep, and crisp and even, and not skiing is my idea of the ideal winter pastime.

It is even more enjoyable than not snow-shoeing, or not duck hunting, or not cross-country running when you're not really cross at the country.

I was introduced to the pleasures of not skiing many years ago, when a conferee conned me into going to the top of Grouse Mountain, the postcard backdrop you often see in south-to-north pictures of Vancouver.

We loaded an automotive vehicle with our equipment and arrived at the lodge rather late of a Saturday night.

We sat in front of a roaring, open fire, were served with rare steaks to build up our strength, and discussed at great detail the feats we would perform on the morrow.

The morrow came, and the snow—so deep, and crisp, and even—had been beneficially eliminated by a gentle rain which had fallen over night.

So we sat in front of a roaring fire, had a sarsaparilla or two, and ate rare steaks to build up our strength for the return trip down the mountain.

On several occasions, I successfully did not ski on Grouse Mountain.

I also enjoyed not skiing in Manitoba, being helped by the fact the snow was (a) too hard-packed and (b) too soft (c) too.

But there came a time in Ontario when I found myself included among a passel of ski-joys who were headed for the hills of Collingwood.

We had made a deal with a farmer in the area to lay on the food; the weather was perfect; the snow was as deep, crisp, and even as anyone could ask for; a pot-bellied stove glowed cherry-red in the farm kitchen; my equipment, from skis downward, was in perfect order.

Fortunately, I had taken the precaution of bandaging my left ankle in eight yards of tape and thus could sit in front of the cherry-red, pot-bellied stove, bemoaning the luck which prevented me from joining the ski-joys who were happily breaking their necks in the deep, crisp, and even snow.

You can see why these bright, brisk mornings turn this Old Man's thoughts to not skiing.

New Arena Chief Within a Week?

Memorial Arena commissioners Thursday hung on to their posts despite defeat last week of a city council motion of confidence in them.

Commission vice-chairman W. F. Pinfold today said most of a commission meeting Thursday afternoon dealt with routine business of the arena and screening of applicants for the arena manager's job.

A new manager might be appointed "within a week" at the earliest, said Mr. Pinfold, who is chairman of the commission's personnel committee.

He said a "whole stack" of applications was being screened to select a few top contenders for personal interviews.

But Mr. Pinfold said he did not know whether any of the applications was made by Joe Dukowski, whose resignation as manager within 90 days was accepted last month.

FIRST MEETING

Thursday's meeting was the first by the commission since city council last week refused to remove the commission at its own request and also defeated a motion of confidence in the commission.

"There was no new suggestion in the city council's letter so we are proceeding with our previous plan," said Mr. Pinfold, referring to a Nov. 21 decision to fill all vacancies created by the resigning committee without prohibiting any of the employees from applying for their own jobs back.

PROGRAM HALTED

(City council twice "suggested" that the commission reinstate the six employees and let Mr. Dukowski go.)

Mr. Pinfold said the re-

Officers, NCOs and men of the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will play host to 500 dependent children, ranging in ages from two to ten years, on Wednesday afternoon at the Work Point drill hall.

B.C. Approves Loan by UBC

University of B.C. has been given authority to borrow a total of $1,660,000 to build student residences.

The B.C. cabinet gave its approval today to doubling the amount originally planned for the project.

UBC will borrow $1,332,575 from Central Mortgage and housing Corporation, the federal agency, and the remaining $327,425 from the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. Graham, the chief engineer, will be available to serve on the PUC between Dec. 21 and Jan. 21.

Chairman Dr. H. F. Angus is taking a month off as he missed summer holidays.

PEARKES GOING TO ORPHANAGE

Winners of the weekly tournament of Victoria Allmasters Duplicate Bridge Club were:

1. Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Waddington, 2. Otto Leesment and Art Kay, 3. Madge Meachem and Ann Kocutyn, 4. Walt Allen and Jack Goldie.

Pleading guilty to charges they failed to comply with demands to file income tax returns, Sardha Singh Bains, 4012 Valleyview Road, was fined $50. John Blair, 5067 Cordova Bay Road, $25 and Robert Lindsay, 1225 Haultain, $25, in city police court today.

The bottle was empty and it was making a noise so I thought I'd get rid of it," Moss told the magistrate.

"I suppose you thought somebody else would clean it up," the magistrate replied.

Ronald Leonard Frumerie, 19, of 3951 Douglas, was fined $20 when he pleaded guilty in city police court Thursday to being a minor in possession of a bottle of beer.

PEAKES GOING TO ORPHANAGE

Children of Victoria Protestant Orphanage, forfeiting a holiday party at Government House this year through a mix-up in dates, will still receive their gifts.

Early Tuesday evening Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Pearkes will visit the Orphanage on Cook Street. They will be accompanied by Santa Claus with a pack filled with presents for the boys and girls.

The traditional party, held annually in Government House on the Saturday before Christmas, was cancelled this year when it was discovered the Shriners had arranged a supper for the children on that date in the orphanage.

Prior commitments at Government House made it impossible to arrange the party for any other Saturday in December.

Gifts are chosen from letters written to Santa Claus by the children.

Party will again be held in Government House next year.

'He Would Have Lived If He'd Taken Blood'

Doctors Give Views On 'Witness' Death

A Victoria doctor told a coroner's jury today that traffic victim David Corrie, 56, of Sooke, a Jehovah's Witness, would be alive now if he had not refused a blood transfusion.

Dr. Jeffrey Bishop said, "In my opinion he would be alive today. My opinion is that a blood transfusion would have saved his life."

His statement was supported strongly by Dr. Malcolm MacKay who said, "I feel that if this man had received adequate blood he would have survived much longer than he did. His chances . . . would have been better than 50-50."

The victim was killed Tuesday when struck in Sooke by a car driven by Haughton Gibson, 83, a Sooke resident. The accident took place about 5:35 p.m. and Corrie was brought into the emergency ward at St. Joseph's Hospital at about 6:20 p.m.

"He was in a state of shock," said Dr. Bishop who first attended him.

URGED HIM

"A blood transfusion was ordered but Corrie refused it. I personally urged Corrie to take a transfusion and he again refused."

As an alternative he was given substitute intravenous which, said Dr. Bishop, replaces fluid loss but is only a partial substitute for blood.

He said in his opinion death was caused by blood loss. The victim had a severe

RUN OVER

He said it was possible a wheel went over Corrie causing the injuries, rather than a blow by the car itself.

Police evidence was the accident took place when Gibson drove out of his driveway and turned west onto the Sooke Highway, crossing the double line in the centre of the hard-top and going off onto the road's gravel shoulder.

Evidence indicated it was at this point the accident took place.

TRAFFIC HEAVY

Mr. Gibson testified traffic was "very considerable" and he waited two or three minutes before pulling out of the driveway.

He said his lights were on low, and the windshield wipers were going as it was "hazy."

He said it was impossible to make a turn onto the highway from the driveway without crossing the centre line because of a deep ditch. Rear wheels went in the ditch unless a wide swing was made, he said.

"When I got to the far side of the road there was a bang on my front wheel, I knew I had hit something. I opened the door, and there was a man's head right underneath."

The inquest, which started at 10 a.m., was still continuing before Dr. J. H. Moore in McCall's funeral home at press time.

IN BUSES

He told the court a passenger found the revolver in bushes on the Belleville side of the Empress Hotel. It was unloaded.

He said later the accused admitted it was the gun used in the holdup.

Oland, after his arrest following a high-speed chase through busy downtown streets, told police he had thrown away in the James Bay area a cap gun he had used.

Oland, who also pleaded guilty to criminally negligent driving, will be sentenced Dec. 22.

KENNETH EASTON, BCE Official, Dies Suddenly

Kenneth Eldred Easton, 59, manager of the pay and cashier department of the B.C. Electric, was taken suddenly ill Thursday at his work, and was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Born in Victoria, he had worked for the firm for 40 years, and was a member of Oaklands Chapel.

Surviving are Irene, at home, 2336 Wootton Crescent; one daughter, Lillian, at home; two sons, Murray at home and Donald, Chilliwack; a brother, Carman, Victoria, and a sister, Mrs. E. W. Burkinshaw, West Vancouver.

Funeral will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. at McCall's, and interment will be at Royal Oak.

SHOWERS?

Weatherman William MacKie said temperatures will rise slightly here with the onset of a weather system heading north up the Washington coast, and that there is the risk of a few showers tonight and Saturday.

Skies will be generally cloudy, and temperatures will range between 30 and 45 degrees. Winds will be light to northerly at 15 miles per hour.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today, Lieselotte Bryce, 1079 Willow, $35 for careless driving.

Eva Lillian Hammond, 1700 McTavish, $30 for careless driving.

Dorothy G. Sheppard, 3957 Carey Road, $35 for careless driving.

Ian Richard Dyke, 1912 King Road, $25, over 30.

Esther Kokslah, Cowichan Bay, $10 for inadequate brakes.

$10 for not having registration card in conspicuous place.

MOTORCYCLIST 'FAIR' AFTER RAMMING CAR

Sixteen-year-old Neil Leard, 1502 Gladstone, suffered serious leg injuries on West Saanich Road at 3:30 p.m. Thursday when his motorcycle slid out of control and crashed into the rear of a car driven by Mrs. Olive Laitham, 3136 Albina.

Eddie Pakutak, riding behind Leard, was thrown clear and not injured.

The two were on their way to a rendezvous at the Keating Cross Road-West Saanich Road intersection, where they were to meet Pearson Morey, 136 Moss, and Eric Forsherg, 1436 Gladstone, who had taken a different route on their motorcycle.

Leard was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where his condition is described as fair.

Naval Nurse 'Critical' After Crash

HMCS Naden hospital nurse Lieut. Maybeth Orchard of Port Dover, Ont., was critically injured about 9 p.m. Thursday when the small car in which she was a passenger spun on a patch of icy Saanich road and crashed into a station wagon.

Driver of the car was Sub-Lt. James Spalding, flag lieutenant to Rear Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes, flag officer, Pacific Coast, and son of RCMP Superintendent Frank Spalding and Mrs. Spalding.

HEAD INJURIES

Lt. Orchard was flung from the right hand front seat to the floor by the impact. She suffered severe head injuries, broken nose, broken right lower leg, and cuts and bruises.

She and the driver were knocked unconscious, but Sub-Lt. Spalding escaped without serious injury. His neck was hurt, but HMCS Naden hospital described his condition as "good."

The accident occurred on Royal Oak Ave., about half way between Blenkinsop Road and the Patricia Bay Highway. The station wagon was driven by Henry Pea, 4475 Densmore, who escaped injury.

ROADS ICY

Saanich police reported the roads were slippery at the time of the accident.

Mr. Pea, who was heading for Royal Oak, said he saw the small car spinning towards him and was forced to turn toward the bush on the right hand side of the road.

After the impact, he said, the smaller car bounced off into a ditch on the opposite side of the road.

Mr. Pea said he found Sub-Lt. Spalding slumped behind the wheel, but did not see the girl lying on the road until later. He flagged a car and asked the driver to get help.

NEARLY HIT HER

John Bosdet, 591 Baxter, driver of the car who phoned police, said he did not see the injured nurse

SHOPPING GUIDE

Popular Party Mix Recipe Available at This Store

By PENNY SAVER

Many readers have already phoned, asking where they can get the recipe and ingredients for their favorite "nuts and bolts" party mix. Owner of store I was in this morning has typed out the recipe and placed it on every bottle of special spices which he sells especially for these tidbits.

Mix is a cinch to make. You simply put cereals, peanuts and pretzels together in a flat pan, sprinkle with half the contents of spice jar, top with butter and bake at 250 degrees for 45 minutes. Two points to remember—one, keep stirring while mix is in the oven and two, standard cartons of cereals should be used.

Jar, which holds sufficient spices for two bawkings, sells at 45 cents and contains 2 1/4 ounces of spices. Special apothecary jar containing same amount is priced at 69 cents. A hint for the gourmet—steaks taste subtly different when sprinkled with a smidgeon of this spice mix!

Children find it very hard at times to get gifts for Mummy that are priced within range of their pocket money. If yours have this problem I suggest they take a look at Salty and Peppy, two perky wooden penguins that double as salt and pepper shakers.

Natty as a tailor's dummies, they have bow ties of either red and white spots or green and white and when shaken will squeak so realistically every member of the family will be fascinated with their South Pole friends. Best news of all, as far as small shoppers are concerned, shakers are priced at a mere $1 a pair.

If you're looking for something in the way of stuffed toys for children on your gift list why not get one of the gay little burros that are covered in velvetine and stand about four inches high? These are made in Mexico and are complete with little leather saddles and metal stirrups. You can choose from burros done in black and yellow or one in brick red and turquoise. All sell at $2.95.

If you would like to know where Penny shopped today give her a ring at EV 2-3131.

Guay-Brayshaw Wedding In St. Alban's Church

Trio of attendants walked with Miss Violet Katherine Brayshaw up the aisle of St. Alban's Anglican Church last Saturday for her marriage to Louis Arthur Guay.

The bride is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Brayshaw of Victoria and the groom is the son of Mrs. S. Guay, Woodstock, Ont. Rev. F. H. Hayes officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

For her wedding the bride chose a floor-length gown fashioned with lace basque bodice featuring lily point sleeves and high neckline and trimmed with pearls and sequins. Bouffant three-tiered overskirt was of lace and net. An embroidered lace veil was held with a double coronet of pearls and sequins and the bouquet was of white feathered carnations and red roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

Senior bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Majorki, wore an aquamarine blue chiffon crepe dress and the bride's sisters, Mrs. W. Watmough, matron of honor, and Miss Gail Brayshaw, junior bridesmaid, wore American beauty rose crepe dresses. White feather hats, long white gloves and pearl necklaces completed their ensembles. They carried cascade bouquets of carnations in American Beauty rose and aquamarine respectively, as contrast to the colors of their gowns.

William Watmough was best man and the ushers were Vern Johnke and Doug Wilson.

A three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table at a reception held in the home of her parents on Edgeware Road. Len Sheppard proposed the toast.

For a wedding trip to Calgary where the groom is stationed with the 2nd Batt. Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, and where the couple will live, the bride donned an olive green suit trimmed with grey fur, a full-length grey coat and black accessories.

When you take freshly-baked bread or rolls from the oven, take them out of the pans at once. This keeps moisture from condensing and spoiling the crispness of the crust. Set loaves of bread on cooling rack or across the edges of the baking pans to cool. Be careful not to place them in a cold draft. Cold air blowing over hot loaves causes the crust to crack. If you like, brush the tops of the loaves and rolls with butter or margarine to help keep them from becoming dry.

NEW YORK—Two-gunned Hugh O'Brian's becoming our busiest beau. He's a two-gal man, too. Take the other day. He escorted Saroya to the Palladium for dancing around 2 a.m. At 2 p.m. the same day, there was Wyatt Earp lunching with Saroya at the Colony. At 2 the next morning, he brought beautiful top model Betsy Pickering to El Morocco. Otherwise, things were dull back at the ranch.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. And when you submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The younger we ask the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a 10-volume set of Encyclopedia Americana. Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Betty Rockwell, aged 10, of Edmonton, N.Y., for her question:

What Does Uranium Look Like?

Pure uranium is a metal, soft and silvery white. By merely looking, you might find it hard to tell a lump of uranium from a lump of magnesium. If the two metals were of equal size, you could tell them apart by weighing them. The uranium weighs almost 10 times as much as the magnesium. It weighs over four times more than a piece of iron of the same size and somewhat more than a piece of lead. The uranium, however, is softer than iron.

Uranium is the heaviest element found in nature. However, we never find it in pure, silvery-white lumps. Uranium is scattered through many rocks in tiny traces. A lump of pure uranium would be taken from one of the uranium ores. The richest uranium ore is pitchblende, a glossy, blue-black mineral. The most valuable deposit of pitchblende is in the Congo region where political trouble has flared in the past few months. Samples of this ore, the world's richest, may yield 50 per cent pure uranium. Canada too has large deposits of pitchblende, but this ore yields only 10 per cent uranium.

Other uranium ores are uranite and carnotite. Uranite looks very much like pitchblende. Carnotite is a canary-yellow rock or powder. The uranium ore of the United States is carnotite, much of it hidden in the rocks of the Colorado Plateau, Utah, New Mexico and Colorado are the chief uranium producing states. Arizona, Wyoming and South Dakota produce smaller amounts.

Uranium is the chief fuel for atomic energy. It is, of course, a radioactive substance. This means that its big, heavy atoms are in the process of breaking up into smaller atoms. Atomic energy and high speed atomic particles are given off in the process. It is not safe to handle the silvery metal.

The role of uranium will grow as more and more atomic energy is used to make electric power and for other everyday uses. Aside from this dramatic role, uranium and its compounds have other jobs in industry. It is used to manufacture certain steels. Its compounds are used to color glass and porcelain. When a speck is added at the right moment, it gives a beautiful amber color to a batch of glass. This uranium glass is used to shield workers from X-rays and radioactive substances.

Andy sends a Hammond's Library World Atlas to David

Goodman, age 10, of Shreveport, La., for his question:

Is there life in the Sargasso Sea?

The Sargasso Sea, half as big as North America, is a sea within a sea. It is a windless region of calm waters and clear skies. This strange area, surrounded by the stormy Atlantic, is named for the sargassum seaweed, a brown algae which clogs its waters. Floating meadows of this weed have been locked in the Sargasso Sea for centuries. For the whole area is surrounded by a huge eddy of swirling ocean currents.

The brown meadows of seaweed support all kinds of small creatures. Like the seaweeds, they too are trapped forever in the calm Sargasso Sea. Flying fish nest in the floating weeds. Shrimps, crabs and countless marine crustaceans hide in the floating foliage. The weedy jungle shelters sea worms and larvae. The Sargasso, then is rich in both plant and animal life. All this life however, is near the surface. Below the floating meadows, the deep ocean reaches down two or three miles.

The boy was the son of Dr. and Mrs. D. E. McKerricher, 15 Stewart Avenue, and the accident occurred at the nearby intersection of Newcastle Avenue and Bryden Street. It is believed the rear wheels of the truck hit the youngster.

An inquest will be held at a date yet to be set, with Coroner Dr. H. W. Lewis presiding.

ISLAND BRIEFS

Woman Fined In Stabbing

CHEMAGINUS — A 22-year-old Chemaginus woman was convicted of assault causing bodily harm and fined $200, or in default 30 days in jail, in Chemaginus police court Thursday.

Theresa "Terry" Johnston was given 14 days to pay the fine.

She was found guilty of assaulting Ernie Taylor, also of Chemaginus, with a knife at a Remembrance Day dance. Taylor received an 11-inch slash on his left arm, requiring 36 stitches, in the fracas.

DUNCAN — Helping a friend cost William Towers, Victoria naval rating, a $10 fine in Duncan police court Thursday when he admitted driving without a licence.

The court was told the car owner was intoxicated, and Towers was driving him to Duncan to sober him up.

Magistrate A. C. Sutton told Towers: "You were breaking the law although it was apparently with good intentions."

DUNCAN — A bill for $10 has been sent to a local resident who called Kivancie ambulance and police to the scene of an "accident" which did not happen.

Police found two persons in the area, one of whom admitted to giving a false alarm.

Ambulance society president Jack Sweeney said the society and drivers are concerned because the service might be wasting time on such a call when a genuine need arose.

DUNCAN — Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce will keep pressure on the provincial government for the re-location of Lake Cowichan Road.

Reporting on a meeting with a committee of the cabin last week, when a Chamber delegation presented an up-to-date brief on the road, president Dave Williams said government officials were "non-committal."

The Chamber will make a motor caravan trip to one of two places next spring, either the Port Renfrew area or Tofino.

He defeated Arne Hill by a vote of 374 to 369. This actually was the first time Mr. Ryan has faced competition in the past 14 years, since all other elections were by acclamation.

Incumbent commissioners Tom Strang and P. R. Battie were re-elected with 513 and 493 votes respectively. Newcomer and loser Stan Heys received 328 votes.

Though defeated by only five votes, Mr. Hill said he would not ask for a recount.

UBC Chief Urges Authority
To Run Education Spending

VANCOUVER—Dr. N. A. M.
MacKenzie, President of the University of British Columbia, said Thursday night establishment of two bodies is essential if B.C. is to have the best system of higher education possible.

They were:

A B.C. government-appointed commission or committee to study the circumstances, problems and needs of higher education;

A single authority to exercise general supervision of the development and financing of all higher education in B.C. that is supported by general tax revenues.

In his annual report to the province, he said he supports a substantial measure of decentralization of higher education in B.C. provided it is carried out intelligently and at the proper time.

But he warned decentralization will mean substantially more money than is provided at present must be made available for higher education.

He said his study committee should be chosen by the government after consultation with the university, Victoria

College and some of the interested groups throughout the province.

Heathman is charged with the murder of Donald Oliver, the city's hobo jungle Sept. 2.

His body was found Sept. 5.

He told the Chamber of Commerce here that the present U.S. Columbia River negotiator is a Republican.

He would be replaced by a Democrat after Democratic President Kennedy took over the much time would have to be spent bringing the new appointee up to date if the treaty had not been ratified by the U.S. Senate by then.

"If the Republicans can come up with a treaty of broad scope, it will be possible to insert that treaty into the American Senate prior to Jan.
20. If we don't get it in prior to Jan. 20, then it ceases to be a responsibility of the Repub-

He said the opponents of a whether they want the prov-whether they want to see

Hutterite Colonies Lose Exemption on Income Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has decided to collect income tax from the Hutterite colonies of Western Canada, starting in the new year.

The decision announced by Revenue Minister Nowlan ends 11 years of tax exemption for the pacifist sect's farm colonies, which in 1949 were freed from income tax on the grounds that they were religious charitable organizations.

Mr. Nowlan said a government study has revealed that the Hutterite farms are operated as businesses to produce profits. Therefore, he said, the colonies are "properly liable" to income tax.

Individual members of the colonies also will be subject to the tax as they always have been. However, few of their taxable incomes usually are too low because of the communal nature of the big farms.

Pressure from western MPs, particularly Alberta members and all of them Conservatives, preceded the government study that led to the decision.

Complaints against the Hutterite exemption were lodged during last spring's budget debate by Jack H. Horner (PC-Acadia), Déane R. Gundlock (PC-Lethbridge), Jack McIntosh (PC-Swift Current) and others. Their main grievance was that other western farmers were being asked through taxation to subsidize the Hutterites, their biggest competitors. About 300,000 acres of farmland is held by Alberta's 55 colonies. There are 10 colonies in Saskatchewan.

Founded in Switzerland in 1526, the pacifist sect moved to Russia in 1700. After Czar Alexander revoked their military exemption in 1870, the Hutterites travelled to the United States in 1875, most of them settling in Montana. The first permanent colony in Canada was set up in 1917.

Farming ability, corporation earnings of the colonies and a high birth rate have led to rapid expansion in Alberta. Until last year, provincial legislation enforced a distance of 40 miles between Hutterite colonies. Now the Alberta cabinet rules on land acquisitions.

FARM, LABOR POSTS FILLED

Kennedy Names Brother as AG

WASHINGTON (AP)—Only two posts remain unfilled today in the cabinet of President-Elect John Kennedy with the appointment of his brother, Robert, as attorney-general.

Kennedy appointed Minnesota governor Orville Freeman as agriculture secretary and AFL-CIO lawyer Arthur Goldberg as labor secretary Thursday night.

The posts of treasury secretary and postmaster-general are the only vacancies left.

Kennedy told reporters Thursday he may fill either or both before flying tonight to Palm Beach, Fla., for a stay perhaps through the Christmas holidays.

The appointment of his brother was apparently delayed when Robert showed reluctance to accept because of his belief it might subject the president-elect to criticism for dealing a cabinet post to a member of his family.

Apart from cabinet-picking chores, Kennedy arranged to confer with Governor Foster Furculo of Massachusetts. That session is almost certain to deal with selection of a man to take over Kennedy's Senate seat when he resigns from that position before the end of the year.

GOVERNOR TO CHOOSE

The successor will be named by Democrat Furculo.

The president-elect last night picked Freeman for the job of heading the agriculture department.

Three hours earlier Kennedy tapped Goldberg for the labor position, a potential hot spot for a union man in dealing with management along with labor.

Freeman, 42, and Goldberg, 52, are Democrats.

After Freeman was named he stepped aside and was replaced next to the president-elect by Representative George McGovern, South Dakota Democrat who ran unsuccessfully for a U.S. Senate seat in November. Kennedy said he had chosen McGovern to serve as director of the new administration's food-for-peace program—a plan for building goodwill abroad through distribution of American surplus farm commodities.

Still later in the evening Kennedy touched off more speculation regarding his forthcoming choice for treasury secretary. He did so by conferring at his home with Eugene R. Black, president of the World Bank. Black told reporters the two had talked about "the financial situation."

Liquor Banned

In addition, employees of the state purchasing division were warned not to accept gifts from salesmen or contractors who deal with the state.

CAN'T DRIVE FOR 3 YEARS

20 Months in Jail For Young Burglar

One of three young men who pleaded guilty to burglary charges in Victoria since October was sentenced in city court Thursday to a total 20 months in jail and forbidden to drive for three years.

Frank Parham, 754 Kings, was told "your conduct is very poor."

"You are no use to your family. They've been on welfare while you've been drinking liquor and prowling about at night constantly," Magistrate William Ostler said.

He sentenced Parham to 14 months each for breaking into Shearing's and Tribe's groceries, and seven months for the burglary of Grant's Grocery, to be served concurrently, plus six months for driving while under suspension, not concurrent with the 14 months.

ONE OF WORST

Mr. Ostler noted from a probation report that Parham's driving record, including eight convictions for driving while under suspension, is one of the worst he had ever seen.

He concurred with the recommendation that the man needs psychiatric treatment.

Courtney McMillan, 31, was put on a year's probation and $500 bond to be of good behavior on condition that he abstain from liquor and return to the home of his parents until he strengthens up.

HEADED FOR SKIDS*

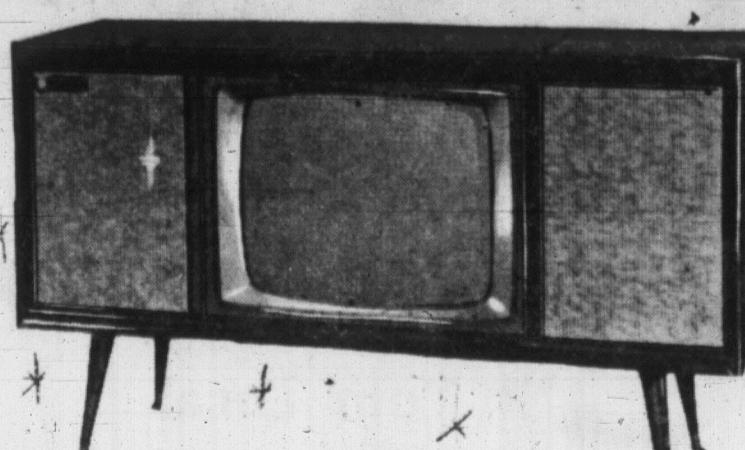

"This is your first conviction," Mr. Ostler noted in sus-

U.S. PLANS TO LAUNCH U.K. ROCKET

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first British space satellite will be launched "in about one year" from a United States site and will be powered by an American Scout rocket, it was announced Thursday.

Plans are to loft a spherical satellite from Wallops Island, Va., into an orbit "which will carry it over the United Kingdom," U.S. officials said.

IF IT IS GOD'S WILL . . .

Prayer Her Husband Be Taken Answered

BY ISABELLE McCAGI

TORONTO (UPI)—God answered the prayers of Shirley Rose last night. He took her husband.

Alan Rose, 27, the English immigrant miner who fought death from the time he was buried under a cascade of sand and debris in a northern Ontario mine cave-in nearly a month ago, died at Toronto General Hospital.

For his 24-year-old wife Shirley it was an answer to her prayers. Earlier in the day close to 1,000 people packed downtown St. James Anglican Cathedral to pray for the miracle which doctors said was needed to save Rose's life.

But Shirley prayed only that if it is God's will Alan be taken, his fight be ended with more suffering.

For Rose it was his first peace since he was trapped at the 1,700-foot level of the Hollinger Consolidated Mine Nov.

He was flown to Toronto where doctors, using everything known to science to save him, operated on him three times.

His right leg was amputated beneath the knee. He was operated on for an ulcer. His throat was slit in a third operation to enable him to breathe.

He was put on an artificial kidney nine times, a record for any patient at the hospital, to clear away poison in his body caused by bleeding of his internal wounds suffered during the cave-in.

The epic of Rose's rescue, in which 100 men risked their lives, and his determination to live against incredible odds captured the imagination and hearts of thousands.

ONE CANADIAN IN TRAGEDY

NEW YORK (CP)—At least one Canadian was believed to have died in today's collision of a United Air Lines and Trans World Airlines plane. Miss Beverley Parks of Halifax was listed as having been aboard the United airliner.

Th' Arena Commission won't do anythin' long's th' Council won't say anythin'—but th' public's sure thinkin' somethin'.

We're nearly out o' th' "shoppin'" days till an' inta th' "exchangin'" days after."

Chaos Reigns On Ground

SAW 'TWO FALL'

'Like A Giant Bomb'

NEW YORK (AP)—A Staten Island housewife said today the explosion of a Trans World Airlines plane following an air collision with a United Air Lines plane was like a giant bomb going off. Mrs. Ethel Walker of New Dorp on Staten Island said she was in her home near where the plane fell.

"I heard the explosion and looked out. It was like a huge bomb. I saw a big cloud of smoke, a mass of flames falling through the sky."

Clifford Beuth, an oil deliveryman, said he heard what appeared to be a plane in distress and looked up.

"I saw the engine on the right side blow up. I only saw one plane...then the second engine on the right side blew up and when it did, it blew the tail section to pieces."

"I saw a couple of people falling out of the plane. It was on fire from the time it blew up to the time it crashed."

LOOKED LIKE FIREBALL

Edward V. Curry, of New Dorp, a New York City councilman, said, "The plane was a ball of flame. It streaked through the air like a comet."

Mrs. John S. Bailey, of New Dorp, a housewife, said, "I saw the wing come off. It kept turning around just like a toy. It was all in flames. It went down in spirals and in flames."

BOMBER SUSPECT

Retired postal worker, Richard Paul Pavlick, 73, is seen in county jail at Palm Beach, Fla., where he is charged with intending to turn himself into human bomb and destroy himself and President-Elect John F. Kennedy. See story, page 2. (AP Wirephoto)

'CHILDREN OF INDIA'

Keep the Lamps Burning

"To each one of us it is given to light a lamp in our own way."

This is the belief of a wise old villager in central India.

More lamps are being lit over India each day, despite paramount ignorance and human frailty.

It is up to more fortunate lands to keep these lamps burning because they are the hope of tomorrow for one-seventh of the human race.

Adults are often set in their ways; children are not, so it is in the hands of the children of India that the future of this sub-continent lies.

Their hands can be taught to operate creatively; their minds to think progressively and throw off the shackles of centuries—old superstition; the entire concept of passive acceptance changed for the better.

When this happens India will be a happier India and the world a happier world.

Times readers are asked to then be able to provide extended medical services, open doors of its orphanages still wider and increase teaching staffs of schools.

And it will mean powdered milk for starving youngsters, soybeans and other staples of life.

This is truly selling Canada and Canada's free-wheeling tolerance, sympathy and active concern.

It reflects immeasurably on this country's individuals—whether or not they are broad-minded enough to know they belong to a world club, not a community club—the human race.

And on the internationally practical side: rare indeed is the dog that bites the hand that feeds him.

Donations may be sent to the two offices of the Times, 1215 Broad or 2631 Douglas.

Cheques should be made payable to the "Times Children of India Fund."

NEW LAW COURTS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Rising rapidly on proposed civic centre precinct is the new Law Courts building, a big addition to already familiar landmarks in the Courtney-Blanshard-Quadra area. Shown in centre, construction is ahead of schedule already. About 120 workmen are pouring the fourth concrete floor and raising

MONTE ROBERTS

These bright, brisk, mornings, with a touch of frost around the edges, make this Old Man turn his thoughts to skiing.

This is the time of year when I dearly wish to go to a ski-lodge, complete with skis, boots, harness, parka, poles, thermoses of sarsaparilla, and bandages.

The basis of my wish to go to a ski-lodge, of course, is my innate desire to not ski.

Going to a ski-lodge, high in the mountains where the snow is deep, and crisp and even, and not skiing is my idea of the ideal winter pastime.

It is even more enjoyable than not snow-shoeing, or not duck hunting, or not cross-country running when you're not really cross at the country.

I was introduced to the pleasures of not skiing many years ago, when a conferee conned me into going to the top of Grouse Mountain, the postcard backdrop you often see in south-to-north pictures of Vancouver.

We loaded an automotive vehicle with our equipment and arrived at the lodge rather late of a Saturday night.

We sat in front of a roaring, open fire, were served with rare steaks to build up our strength, and discussed at great detail the feats we would perform on the morrow.

The morrow came, and the snow—so deep, and crisp, and even—had been beneficially eliminated by a gentle rain which had fallen over night.

So we sat in front of a roaring fire, had a sarsaparilla or two, and ate rare steaks to build up our strength for the return trip down the mountain.

On several occasions, I successfully did not ski on Grouse Mountain.

I also enjoyed not skiing in Manitoba, being helped by the fact the snow was (a) too hard-packed and (b) too soft (c) too.

But there came a time in Ontario when I found myself included among a passel of ski-joyers who were headed for the hills of Collingwood.

We had made a deal with a farmer in the area to lay on the food; the weather was perfect; the snow was as deep, crisp, and even as anyone could ask for; a pot-bellied stove glowed cherry-red in the farm kitchen; my equipment, from skis downward, was in perfect order.

Fortunately, I had taken the precaution of bandaging my left ankle in eight yards of tape and thus could sit in front of the cherry-red, pot-bellied stove, bemoaning the luck which prevented me from joining the ski-joyers who were happily breaking their necks in the deep, crisp, and even snow.

You can see why these bright, brisk mornings turn this Old Man's thoughts to not skiing.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1960—PAGE 21

'He Would Have Lived If He'd Taken Blood'

Doctors Give Views On 'Witness' Death

A Victoria doctor told a coroner's jury today that traffic victim David Corrie, 56, of Sooke, a Jehovah's Witness, would be alive now if he had not refused a blood transfusion.

Dr. Jeffrey Bishop said, "In my opinion he would be alive today. My opinion is that if this man had received adequate blood he would have survived much longer than he did. His chances . . . would have been better than 50-50."

The victim was killed Tuesday when struck in Sooke by a car driven by Haughton Gilson, 83, a Sooke resident. The accident took place about 5:35 p.m. and Corrie was brought into the emergency ward at St. Joseph's Hospital at about 6:20 p.m.

"He was in a state of shock," said Dr. Bishop who first attended him.

URGED HIM

"A blood transfusion was ordered but Corrie refused it. I personally urged Corrie to take a transfusion and he again refused."

As an alternative he was given substitute intravenous which, said Dr. Bishop, replaces fluid loss but is only a partial substitute for blood.

He said in his opinion death was caused by blood loss.

The victim had a severe head laceration and bled from the time he was struck until the wound was sutured in the emergency ward.

Dr. Bishop said that if Corrie had accepted a transfusion there would have been a marked improvement in his condition in from 30-to 60 minutes.

MENTALLY CLEAR

Dr. MacKay also asked Corrie if he would accept transfusion and received a negative answer.

"The patient was mentally clear. We explained to him he should have blood and he refused. This man would have benefitted greatly by blood and his chances of survival would have been good."

Under questioning by jury members he said it would constitute "assault" if blood were administered against a patient's wishes.

Corrie appeared to be in "fair" condition, but then deteriorated rapidly, within about five minutes, and died at 10:15 p.m.

Pathologist at St. Joseph's,

Dr. G. L. Walther who performed an autopsy, said the victim had abrasions to head, hands and legs, a laceration on the left temple, six fracture, ribs on the right side and all the ribs broken on the

RUN OVER

He said it was possible a wheel went over Corrie causing the injuries, rather than a a blow by the car itself.

Police evidence was the accident took place when Gibson drove out of his driveway and turned west onto the Sooke

Highway, crossing the double line in the centre of the hardtop and going off onto the road's gravel shoulder.

Evidence indicated it was at this point the accident took place.

TRAFFIC HEAVY

Mr. Gibson testified traffic was "very considerable" and he waited two or three minutes before pulling out of the driveway.

He said his lights were on low and the windshield wipers were going as it was "hazy."

He said it was impossible to make a turn onto the highway from the driveway without crossing the centre line because of a deep ditch. Rear wheels went in the ditch unless a wide swing was made,

He said later the accused admitted it was the gun used in the holdup.

Odland, after his arrest following a high-speed chase through busy downtown streets, told police he had thrown away in the James Bay area a cap gun he had used.

Odland, who also pleaded guilty to criminally negligent driving, will be sentenced Dec. 22.

When the tide went out the snow was ground and extensively damaged.

J. Alan Baker, for Pacific, said the company had taken

"reasonable care" in delivering the snow and it could not be shown that the snow had been damaged as a result of neglect.

The inquest, which started at 10 a.m., was still continuing before Dr. J. H. Moore in McCall's funeral home at press time.

Kenneth Eldred Easton, 59, manager of the pay and cash department of the B.C. Electric, was taken suddenly ill

Thursday at his work, and was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's

127 KILLED AS AIRLINERS COLLIDE OVER NEW YORK

SAW 'TWO FALL'

'Like A Giant Bomb'

NEW YORK (AP) — A Staten Island housewife said today the explosion of a Trans-World Airlines plane following an air collision with a United Air Lines plane was like a giant bomb going off. Mrs. Ethel Walker of New Dorp on Staten Island said she was in her home near where the plane fell.

"I heard the explosion and looked out. It was like a huge bomb. I saw a big cloud of smoke, a mass of flames falling through the sky."

Clifford Beuth, an oil deliveryman, said he heard what appeared to be a plane in distress and looked up.

"I saw the engine on the right side blow up. I only saw one plane . . . then the second engine on the right side blew up and when it did, it blew the tail section to pieces."

"I saw a couple of people falling out of the plane. It was on fire from the time it blew up to the time it crashed."

LOOKED LIKE FIREBALL

Edward V. Curry, of New Dorp, a New York City councilman, said, "The plane was a ball of flame. It streaked through the air like a comet."

Mrs. John S. Bailey, of New Dorp, a housewife, said, "I saw the wing come off. It kept turning around just like a toy. It was all in flames. It went down in spirals and in flames."

PULLED BLINDS

Horrified Onlookers Hid Away

NEW YORK (AP) — The scene was one of such shocking horror that many of the residents of the normally quiet park slope neighborhood in Brooklyn walked stunned into their homes and pulled down the shades.

An entire city block was left a smoking rubble of bricks, plaster and splintered wood today after a United Air Lines plane plunged into it out of a snowy sky after a collision with a Trans World Airlines craft.

Mrs. Constance Ciazzo was looking out the window of the flower shop where she works. "Probably the worst thing I saw was a 17 or 18-year-old boy running screaming down the street from the accident with blood running down his entire face," she said.

"He was screaming, 'Oh, those people are burning to death.' My husband tried to grab him, but he kept running as if he couldn't stop. He was injured and I think he was out of his mind."

Julius Lehmann, 58, was driving his bakery truck down a street when he heard a loud noise and saw the plane diving out of the sky."

"I thought it was going to hit me," he said. "It was coming right at me. I raced my motor and sped down the street. Then I heard it hit, and I stopped the truck and got out. I'm still shaking."

Whole Block Set Afire

NEW YORK (AP) — Two huge airliners, groping through snow-shrouded skies for landings, collided and crashed into the city today with fiery devastation. At least 127 were killed.

The disaster was one of the worst in American aviation history. It unleashed flames and havoc on the ground. Residents fled apartments screaming as walls caved in and fires broke out in a dozen buildings.

So far, however, only one person on the ground was known killed. Of the 127 persons aboard the two planes, two of them babies, one lived—a young boy.

An army of emergency workers fought through the fires and wreckage, with possibly other casualties still to be found.

One plane, a United Airlines DC-8 jet with 85 aboard, struck in heavily populated Brooklyn, hurling debris-like bomb fragments, and setting 10 apartment buildings on fire. A church—ironically named Pillar of Fire—was demolished. A funeral parlor was in flames.

The other plane, a Trans-World Airlines Constellation carrying 42, raked over the Miller Field section of Staten Island, and came to rest in harbor water. It also started fires in the area, but they were quickly controlled.

Heavy snow was falling when the crash came about 10:40 a.m. EST. (7:40 PST).

Mountain of Rubble To Be Probed

The lone passenger to survive was identified as Stephen Baltz, 11, of Chicago's suburban Wilmette. He was on his way to join his mother, who was visiting relatives in New York.

Killed on the ground was Charles Cooper, a sanitation department employee who was shoveling snow.

Although only one victim on the ground had been found by early afternoon, Fire Commissioner Edward F. Cavanaugh Jr. said firemen still had mountains of wreckage and rubble to search.

At one point, a whole block was afire, but within four hours, a massive force of firemen, police emergency crews, air force and coast guard squads had stemmed most of the fire's spread.

The coast guard said it had 21 boats searching waters off Brooklyn and Staten Island for survivors or bodies.

Idlewild airport sources said the close proximity of the wrecks indicated a collision although nobody could be found immediately who had actually witnessed the two planes smashing together.

Thousands of spectators rushed to the Brooklyn disaster area. Roadways leading to the scene were choked with traffic. Emergency vehicles had difficulty getting through.

In Brooklyn, two hours after the crash, the bodies of 15 persons had been taken to vacant stores serving as morgues.

The TWA Flight 226 was bound from Dayton and Columbus, Ohio, and groping for a landing at LaGuardia airport. The United Air Lines Flight 826 out of Chicago was headed through the muck for Idlewild Field.

The fields are about 10 miles apart, Idlewild near the south side of Long Island in Queens, and LaGuardia near the north shore.

ONLY WORDS

'Mother's Waiting For Me'

By IRISH DONNELLY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mother . . . she's waiting for me." These mumbled words came from the lone survivor of today's double plane disaster, 11-year-old Stephen Baltz, as he lay seriously injured in Brooklyn's Methodist Hospital.

He was aboard one of the two airliners that collided over New York today.

He apparently was hurled free from a tail section.

In the hospital he recovered consciousness long enough to murmur that his mother was waiting at Idlewild Airport for him.

And he was right. She was there with a number of others waiting for the plane. They were in tears. When the news of her son's survival was given her, she broke into a great smile of joy.

The youngster had serious burns, and an undetermined number of broken bones. His condition is listed as critical. He lapsed back into unconsciousness shortly after his few remarks.

"A whole block is afire," police said of the scene in Brooklyn, an area of thickly placed apartment houses near Flatbush and Eighth Avenue. "It's chaotic."

Bodies were hauled out of both crash areas.

Police, fire departments and hospitals rushed all equipment available to the crash areas.

A seven-alarm fire was sounded in Brooklyn. Mitchell Field air force base on Long Island was asked for help.

Flames broke out in the wreckage of both fallen planes. In Brooklyn, flames spread to the surrounding buildings. Debris was flung over the areas like an artillery barrage. Walls of

'Something Wrong' With Directions

Normally two planes approaching the two fields would be separated by being assigned to different altitudes, and by passing given points on the approaches at different times.

"Obviously something went wrong," an Idlewild communication spokesman said. "But we don't know what—at this moment."

The disaster recalled a collision over the Grand Canyon on June 30, 1956, also between TWA and United Airlines, with 128 persons killed.

Today's crashes created catastrophes of major proportions on the ground, as well as for the airliners.

Some buildings were shattered.

The TWA Lockheed Constellation struck in the water off Miller Field, Staten Island.

'THE BOY'S CLOTHES WERE AFIRE'

By MRS. AMELIA HELMIS
As told to United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — "I saw the whole thing."

I was standing on Union St., corner of South St. I heard the blast. Then I saw the tail end coming down. It landed on Seventh Ave. and Sterling — hit on top of a red truck.

There was one boy in the snow. He had just fallen out of the plane. I rushed to him. His name was Stanley, he said. But he was not talking clearly.

(The boy's name, it was learned later, was Stephen.)

His mouth was bleeding. His hands were burned and cut. His clothes were on fire. Oh, it was awful. His face was peeling off. He had red curly hair and seemed to be about 10 or 12 years old.

The police rushed him to Methodist Hospital on 6th St. and 7th Ave.

ONE CANADIAN IN TRAGEDY

NEW YORK (CP) — At least one Canadian was believed to have died in today's collision of a United Air Lines and Trans World Airlines plane. Miss Beverley Parks of Halifax was listed as having been aboard the United airliner.
